Ernest Dalskog Bound for Jail On Court Order

Former I.W.A. Official Fails To Turn Over $130,000 in Funds

VANCOUVER, April 7 (CP).—Counsel for Ernest Dalskog, the vice-president of the rebel woodworkers' union, said tonight he believed his client was being held overnight in sheriff's custody before being taken to Oakalla Prison Farm tomorrow.

Dalskog earlier today was arrested and ordered to jail on a contempt of court charge after he refused to turn over $130,000 in union funds to a Supreme Court receiver.

The counsel, John S. Burton, did not say whether bail would be sought. He said he believed Dalskog is being held in a Vancouver Hotel room overnight rather than be taken to city jail as is customary.

It was expected Dalskog would appear shortly on the contempt charge.

The money is an International Woodworkers of America strike fund, seized by Dalskog when he and Harold Pritchett, Woodworkers' Industrial Union of Canada president, led a union split last October 2.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson ordered the former I.W.A. official to jail after a last-minute hearing in Supreme Court Chambers.

In an earlier hearing, he issued an ultimatum that Dalskog turn over the funds by 3:30 p.m.

Dalskog defied the court order and was arrested for contempt.

A Supreme Court order issued the day following the disaffiliation move from the I.W.A. ordered all the union's funds, records and property turned over to the court receiver.

Dalskog has steadfastly refused to produce the money, claiming it is held "in trust."

Labor Slips In Voting For Council

LONDON, April 8 (Friday) (CP).—The ruling Labor Party slipped badly in Thursday's London County Council elections, the first to be held after the announcement of the new British budget calling for higher food prices and continued heavy taxes.

A dozen counties elected councils for the next three years, Thursday, the day after the budget was published but major interest centred on the L.C.C. voting.

Partial returns today showed:

Labor's 3-1 majority over the Conservatives on the 129-seat L.C.C. seemed to be falling to less than 2-1. Seven-eighths of the 129 seats—approaching two-thirds—had been decided.

Labor had won 43, the Conservatives 34, and the Liberal Party one. Three Communist candidates were beaten.

Where 75 Persons Died In Hospital Fire

A flash fire roaring through old St. Anthony's Hospital, Effingham, Ill., took the lives of 75 persons. Intense heat and smoke delayed search for bodies. Yesterday 70 bodies had been recovered. All hospital records were destroyed. The blaze gutted the 62-year-old, three-and-a-half-story structure. Fire was the second worst hospital disaster in United States history. Worst was the Cleveland Clinic disaster in which 124 persons perished.

Coalition Gets Liberals' Vote At Convention

Party Registers 520 to 96 Tally To Keep Present Government Form

By FRED McNEIL
Colonist Staff Re porter

VANCOUVER, April 7.—After four hours of heated debate yesterday afternoon, the British Columbia Liberal convention voted, 520 to 96, for continuing Coalition Government on the basis of the "Hart Formula."

Opponents of Coalition fought doggedly to postpone decision throughout the hectic session until what looked like an attempted filibuster near the end was cut off by a motion barring further discussion.

Premier Byron Johnson placed the question squarely before the delegates during a speech reviewing achievements of the Coalition during the past year.

"My judgment tells me we should keep Coalition and make a good job of the election," said Mr. Johnson. "I am asking you, as your leader, to go on record for Coalition in a way that the people of British Columbia will understand Liberals are for British Columbia."

GIVEN PRIORITY

Motion on Coalition was given priority over 40 other resolutions yet to come before the convention, despite objections from some delegates that Coalition supporters were trying to "railroad" the measure through.

Still to be discussed is the controversial question of a single transferable vote, which anti-Coalitionists tried to tack on as a condition for supporting the Coalition motion.

Executive of the association asked for the alternative system of voting at a meeting last December, but Premier Johnson said he had not been willing to present it to the Legislature, because to do so would have been to break Coalition.

The Hart formula allows Liberals to run candidates in the 16 seats now held by Liberal members, while the Progressive Conservatives will run their own candidates in 15 ridings now held by their party. In the double riding of Vancouver East, now held by two C.C.F. members, there will be one Progressive Conservative and one Liberal candidate. In nine other ridings now held by the C.C.F. in Fernie, and in the three ridings now held by straight Coalitionists (Esquimalt, Comox and North Vancouver) there will be an open convention. Candidates will be selected at a nominating convention made up of equal numbers of Liberals and Progressive Conservatives.

Opposition to Coalition was voiced mainly, but not entirely by younger members of the party. They hammered on the idea that failure to return to the two old-line parties was giving the C.C.F. more power and paving the way for an eventual Socialist Government. This, they claimed, was inevitable when the C.C.F. was the only alternative to the present Government.

Coalitionists said the present Government should concentrate first on "wiping the C.C.F. off the map" at the coming election and then return to the two-party system.

As the debate rolled on past the dinner hour, tempers became frayed and discussion degenerated into bickering and shouting across the floor.

SEEKS UNITY

At one point, Chairman Arthur Laing declared: "I suggest we should discuss this matter in such a way that, whatever is decided, we will go out of here united to support the majority decision.

"I urge you to keep your language within the bounds of friendship and your minds on the problem."

Last-ditch attempts to postpone voting until Friday were turned down flatly. A motion to hold a standing vote, allowing hungry delegates to have dinner, was branded as a "Communistic idea."

Nearly one hour late, the delegates buried the animosities at a dinner in the banquet room, where they heard Liberal stalwart H. G. T. Perry, calling for renewed efforts for Liberalism.

Attack On Seamen Costly

McADAM, N.B., April 7 (CP).—Edward Reid, Saint John business agent for the striking Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.), pleaded guilty in McAdam police court tonight to a charge of assault causing actual bodily harm.

Magistrate George F. Craig imposed a fine of $100 or two months. Reid paid the fine and left McAdam immediately.

Information against the union's business agent was sworn by William Norfolk, one of several injured members of the rival Seafarers' International Union (A.F.L.).

The case arose from Tuesday's brief fracas in a McAdam hotel between about 25 men from Saint John and approximately 30 S.I.U. men. The latter had left Montreal to replace at least one of the striking C.S.U. crews at East Coast ports.

Most of the S.I.U. group were reported to be still in McAdam tonight, presumably awaiting instructions. There were also reports some had continued to Saint John.

One of the party, who withheld his name, termed the Tuesday incident a "sneak attack."

Anticipating possible trouble at Saint John, the group had left the train for a temporary stay in McAdam. They were weary and resting in bed, police said, when club-carrying attackers broke into several rooms, clubbed the occupants and fled. In several cases, when S.I.U. men tried to leave their rooms to form defensive ranks, someone was waiting outside to knock them on the head.

Ship Takes on Crew, Sails for Scotland

With a crew of 30 Seafarers' International Union members aboard, the freighter Ss. Seaboard Queen, strikebound here since last Saturday, sailed at 8 p.m. yesterday for Scotland.

Part of her crew was put aboard by fishboat just before the ship sailed. The Queen had been anchored off Royal Roads since she left Ogden Point at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

EMBITTERED

Behind her she left an embittered Canadian Seaman's Union crew who had held up the ship's sailing last Friday, and had sought unsuccessfully to prevent the S.I.U. men from boarding the vessel.

On Thursday the S.I.U. crew members sent over from Vancouver, ignored the C.S.U. "picket line," and boarded the vessel at Ogden Point.

City police had earlier ordered the C.S.U. men off the dock, following an interim injunction earlier in the day, permitting the company to order the men off the ship.

It was after this that the picket line was established above the dock.

C.S.U. crewmen, still in Victoria last night, claimed that dockworkers in the United Kingdom would refuse to handle the Seaboard Queen's cargo.

BULLETINS

No Slump

TORONTO, April 7 (CP).—Reconstruction Minister Winters said tonight that he sees no signs of a depression in Canada. He predicted "a sound recovery to look forward to in the future."

Of his party's prospects in the forthcoming general election, he said he could see no other party in Canada which could claim national support.

Senate Adjourns

OTTAWA, April 7 (CP).—The Senate adjourned late tonight for a two-week Easter recess, after Royal assent was given to the final portion of the $100,000,000 worth of supplementary estimates for the 1948-49 period.

Shipping Starts

MONTREAL, April 7 (CP).—The navigation season opened in the port of Montreal tonight—earliest date on record—with the arrival of the 10,000-ton freighter Mont Alta of the Montreal Shipping Co.

British, French In Agreement On New State

WASHINGTON, April 7 (AP).—The Foreign Ministers of Britain and France today reached an "accord in principle" with State Secretary Acheson about the future of Western Germany.

Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France disclosed the development at the State Department after the three diplomats had met for two hours.

This marked the fourth time during the last few days that Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain, Schuman and Acheson have conferred in an effort to settle their long-standing differences on how best to control Germany.

EXACT WORDING

Talking to reporters afterward, Schuman said experts from the three sides now are drafting the exact wording of the broad agreement they have approved.

The three-power accord is expected to pave the way for establishment of a separate Western German government later this year.

Schuman declined to give details but said "everything is going well," indicating that France's demands are being met at least partly.

Michael McDermott, State Department press officer, said a formal communique will be issued tomorrow.

In the past, France has insisted on strong three-power controls over the action of any German government, with any of the three powers empowered to veto German decisions.

The French have refused to merge their zone of Germany into the British-American zone until this demand had been taken care of.

Says Canada Not Taking U.S. Orders

EDMONTON, April 7 (CP) — Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes, chief of the Canadian general staff, said in an interview today that United States "high brass" is not dictating to Canada in military matters.

"We are carrying on relations with the United States military leaders in the same cordial manner that prevailed between Canada and the United States during the war," he said.

The chief of staff was commenting on a report from Vancouver Tuesday in which Andrew D. McLean, president of Hugh C. McLean publications, was quoted as saying that top United States military leaders are "beginning to push their neighbors around."

By-Law Seen on School; Bids Top Funds on Hand

A money by-law authorizing a minimum expenditure of $116,000 may be submitted to electors in the Greater Victoria district to permit construction of Topaz Junior High School and View Royal Elementary School.

Lowest tender received on the Topaz project was for $828,627. It was submitted by the Commonwealth Construction Company of Victoria with an estimated completion date of one year from the start of construction.

Lowest tender received on the View Royal project was submitted by McKinty & Sons, of Victoria, in the amount of $97,532. Completion was estimated within "five or six months."

OTHER TENDERS

Other tenders on Topaz Avenue Junior High School included those of Dawson & Hall, of Vancouver, for $849,941, estimated time of construction, 14 months; Bennett & White Construction Co., of Vancouver, for $944,728, completion before December 31, 1950.

Other tenders on View Royal Elementary School included T. Lambie & Son, of Victoria, $114,657, completion within 30 weeks; J. A. Pollard Construction Co., Ltd., of Victoria, $102,536, completion within 18 weeks; G. H. Wheaton, of Victoria, $97,651, no estimated completion date mentioned.

Tenders were opened in the school board offices yesterday at a special meeting of the board.

$636,000 AVAILABLE

The board has $636,000 available through the 1947 school expansion by-law for the Topaz school and $58,300 for the View Royal school.

Rising building costs have forced the increases.

The Provincial Government bears a 50 per cent share of the cost of erecting the schools. Thus, if the two lowest tenders are accepted, the combined additional expenditures, which total at least $231,859, would be shared equally by Greater Victoria municipalities and the Government. Equipment costs are likely to push the total higher.

Trustees discussed tenders in private after they had been opened. Tenders must be approved by the Provincial Superintendent of Education.

FIRM BIDS

All tenders were described as firm bids. Plans for the four-room View Royal school call for frame and stucco construction. Reinforced concrete is called for in plans for the Topaz school which is to contain 16 classrooms. Trustees said it met all city building by-laws.

The board declared the two schools are urgently needed to take care of the increasing school population. It had delayed proceeding with construction "as long as it has been economically possible.

Will Continue Main Inquiry On Rate Issue

OTTAWA, April 7 (CP).—Transport Minister Chevrier told the Commons tonight the Board of Transport Commissioners is to continue its Government-ordered general inquiry aimed at leveling inequalities in the freight rate structure.

He gave this assurance after Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver South) had asked if the new Royal Commission on Transport was to supersede the board in this job.

Mr. Chevrier said the board already had started its inquiry with preliminary studies and certainly intended to continue its own investigation. Presumably it would confer with the royal commissioners so there would be no duplication.

Mr. Green declared only the board had power to vary freight rates, yet it appeared now the royal commission had "taken the ball away" and the board might not act to remove inequalities until after the royal commission reported.

That, he said, might be at the end of one or two years.

The minister said he would not guess at how long the commission inquiry would take.

Defence Policies Upheld In Face of Heavy Fire

OTTAWA, April 7 (CP).—Progressive Conservative members brought the Government's defence policies under fire in the Commons again today and heard Defence Minister Claxton declare that Canada has made as great progress as any other country in the co-ordination and unification of her armed forces.

He reported that the forces have just had their "best two months" of recruiting since the war. "What is more," he added, "the quality is of the kind we need."

The main criticism came from four Progressive Conservatives, all veterans—Wing Cmdr. Lawrence Skey (P.C., Toronto Trinity), Lt.-Col Alan Cockeram (P.C., York South), Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (P.C., Calgary East) and Capt. Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver South).

Mr. Skey plumped for a strong fighter-plane force. Mr. Cockeram criticized the storage of transport aircraft in a hangar near Toronto. Mr. Harkness asserted the army was in no condition to meet an enemy, and Capt. Green called for the formation of a Pacific Defence Pact.

SUGGEST RESIGNATION

Mr. Skey and Mr. Cockeram suggested Mr. Claxton's resignation if he could not do the job of strengthening the forces and be more frank with Parliament on defence matters.

Mr. Claxton told Mr. Green the question of whether the Government favors a Pacific Pact specifically is one of Government policy on which he could not comment.

In equipment, he said, this country was the first to undertake the design and construction of a new type of high-speed anti-submarine vessel.

In addition, the forces were continuing the development of the Orenda engine and the XC-100 night fighter all-weather aircraft and tests already made of the engine indicate it may not only be a success, "but an exceedingly good engine."

Answering criticism to the effect that Canada's fighter-plane forces are only about one-third the strength of Sweden's, he said the defence needs of each country must be considered with regard to the situation in that country.

Expect Rebels To Surrender

RANGOON, Burma, April 7 (AP).—Burmese Government officials expect to receive tomorrow the surrender of Karen tribesmen, who have been in rebellion for almost ten weeks. The military branch of the Karen National Union (K.N.U.) will lay down arms in a capitulation ceremony scheduled for tomorrow morning.

Pledges Money Against Reds

PORT COLBORNE, Ont., April 7 (CP).—A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, declared tonight that his organization will spend "every penny and effort" to banish Communists from the Canadian labor movement.

Mr. Mosher addressed a stormy meeting punctuated by the shouts of a small band of hecklers.

As North Atlantic Pact Became Reality

HON. L. B. PEARSON, CANADA — BJARNI BENEDIKTSSON, ICELAND — COUNT CARLO SFORZA, ITALY

—Central Press Canadian.

Representatives of nations large and small place their signatures on the 12-nation North Atlantic pact during a formal ceremony in Washington's departmental auditorium. Signing the pact on behalf of their respective countries are: Hon. Lester B. Pearson, Canada's Secretary of State for External Affairs; Count Carlo Sforza, Italy, and Bjarni Benediktsson of Iceland.

Russian Protest Downed; U.N. Will Probe Trials

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., April 7 (CP).—Over slashing Russian opposition, the United Nations steering committee today decided to air fully before the General Assembly the Communist prosecution of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty and other religious leaders.

The 14-man committee voted 11 to 2, with Iran abstaining, to accept proposals that the 58 U.N. members decide whether human rights were violated at the religious trials in Hungary and Bulgaria.

Jakob A. Malik, Soviet Deputy Foreing Minister, made his harshest U.N. speech denouncing Cardinal Mindszenty, Roman Catholic Primate of Hungary, and the 16 Protestant church leaders of the neighboring iron curtain country as "criminals, renegades and warmongers."

Canada was included by Malik among the countries which he said violated the U.N. charter by trying to interfere in the internal affairs of states which were not even U.N. members.

Russia and Poland voted against the investigation plan as the Soviet bloc suffered its first major defeat in the Assembly which reconvened Tuesday.

The steering committee decided without a vote to send the problem to the 58-member political committee en route to the full assembly. The political committee today worked on disposition of the prewar Italian colonies.

Western delegates expressed the belief the full assembly finally would issue a denunciation of Hungary and Bulgaria for conduct of the trials.

Court Refuses Evidence Of Woman of No Beliefs

Magistrate H. C. Hall refused to hear the evidence of a Seattle woman in city police court yesterday after she said she had no beliefs when asked if an oath on the Bible would be binding on her.

She was Mrs. Jessie Chin Poy, called as a defence witness on behalf of her husband who is charged with attempting to conceal $10,000 in United States currency from Patricia Bay Airport customs officials.

The admission from the woman sent the court into a mild flurry that lasted almost 15 minutes.

"Get the Code," Magistrate Hall instructed a court official, while Lawyers Joseph McKenna for the accused, and J. Howard Harmon and Lloyd G. McKenzie for the Crown, reached for their law books.

Mr. McKenna, laid down his book long enough to assert that "any person offering to be a witness in court should be allowed to give evidence," and urged the court to examine her on what kind of an oath would be binding on her.

"But this question is on the weight of the evidence," Magistrate Hall said. "This person does not say she has no religious beliefs, she just says she has no beliefs."

From the witness box, Mrs. Chin Poy nodded, an amused smile playing about her lips.

It was then that Magistrate Hall ruled that "unless some authority for it can be shown, I won't admit it."

Then Mr. Harmon sought to call a witness to testify on the religious beliefs of Chin Poy, but was overruled by Magistrate Hall.

"He'll be liable for perjury now if he stated anything that is false and is proven to the contrary," the magistrate said.

School Board Opens Tenders for New Schools

—Colonist Photo.

TENDERS for Topaz Avenue Junior High School and View Royal Elementary School were opened in school board offices yesterday. Lowest tenders submitted on the schools raise combined cost of erecting new units $231,859 above original estimate contained in 1947 school expansion by-law. Money by-law will be submitted ratepayers when tenders are approved by provincial superintendent of education and officially accepted. Major R. H. Green, chairman of school board, is shown right above opening tenders for View Royal School. John Wade, of Birley, Wade & Stockdill, architects who drew up plans, is shown centre. T. L. Christie, secretary-treasurer of Greater Victoria School Board, is shown at left.

School Tenders Exceed Funds Now Available

"These buildings are now urgently required but the board is not at present contemplating proceeding with the balance of its building program in the hope that there will be a further adjustment downwards in the cost of construction.

TO COVER ACTUAL COST

"The board has proceeded with the matter of securing firm tenders so that the amount of money requested in the new by-law will cover the actual cost of construction and equipping of the new buildings.

"It is interesting to note in this connection that the new Vocational Technical building at Victoria High School has just been completed, and although only $1,500 was included for contingencies, the architects assure us that when final adjustment is made the cost will be within one per cent of the amount appropriated for that building."

Other Items May Go On Banned List

There were no new developments yesterday in the Island Freight Service drivers' strike, but words by union and company officials still indicated a long, drawn-out dispute.

John M. Scoular, company managing director, said last night no further attempts have been made to reach a settlement. He saw no immediate solution of the 49-day-old strike.

The 49 striking drivers rejected a five-cent-an-hour wage increase in wages and British Columbia medical board offered by the company, Wednesday.

Cecil W. Wilkinson, president of the Vancouver Island Drivers' Division 234, of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees and Other Transport Workers, to which the drivers belong, said:

"There will probably be new developments within 48 hours, concerning freight normally hauled by the Island Freight and now being transported by the E. & N. Railway."

He hinted that other items may be added to the list of goods declared "hot" by the union. As yet, only beer, liquor and explosives have been outlawed.

Mr. Wilkinson said four men were sent to Nanaimo to bolster the picket lines there, and more would be sent to Port Alberni today.

The truckers are demanding a 12-cent-an-hour increase in wages.

Fireman Killed

VANCOUVER, April 7 (CP). — A city fireman was fatally injured today in a three-story fall from a fire department training ladder. It was the second fatal fall here in 24 hours.

William McPhatter died in Vancouver General Hospital two hours after he plunged to a concrete court from a steel training ladder. He suffered head injuries and multiple fractures.

Payments to All Chest Agencies Only Reach Over Ten Months

Greater Victoria Community Chest may have to close shop for the last two months of 1949—at least as far as payments to participating agencies are concerned.

The new board of directors of the Chest fund decided at last night's inaugural meeting to allocate funds on a ten-month basis to the agencies.

"Unless more money is forthcoming there will be no provision for allotments in November and December," officials said last night, following the meeting.

The decision came after discussion on whether a reduced service for 12 months or a "good" service for ten months should be Community Chest policy, with majority of directors voting for latter course.

APPROVE EXPENDITURES

The directors approved a total expenditure of $115,145.72 for the ten months. The agencies had submitted an estimate of requirements totaling $180,000. The approved sum is $2,000 more than the sum collected in the last fund campaign, according to the report.

Single exception to the ten-month plan was the $14,000 set aside for campaign and administative costs, which remain on a 12-month basis.

Allotments to the different agencies, with last year's figure in brackets, are as follows:

Family Welfare and Children's Aid Society, $40,000 (31,375); Y.M.C.A., $15,000 (9,967); Y.W.C.A., $11,700 (9,200); Auxiliary to St. Joseph's Hospital, $836 (991.50); Auxiliary to St. Vincent de Paul Society, $1,000 (1,150); Boy Scouts, $5,000 (4,984); Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $3,500 (3,000); Citizens' Recreation Room, $1,150 (1,245.85).

Columbia Coast Mission, $1,000 (1,146); Community Welfare Council, $2,900 (3,067.90); Esquimalt Community Centre, $1,700 (2,045); Esquimalt Friendly Help Association, $750 (825); Fred Landsberg Sunshine Camp, $4,400 (3,600); James Bay Community Centre, $840 (2,045); John Howard Society, $2,100 (1,985.15).

Oak Bay Friendly Help Association, $200 (250); Recreation Council of Greater Victoria, $3,112.46 (3,391.75); Social Service Index, $750 (733); St. Vincent de Paul Society, $707 (754); Victorian Order of Nurses, $7,599.76 (9,167); Women's Workroom, $400 (458.40).

Officials said that the Women's Workroom had been closed because of lack of call for its services, not because its budget had not been met.

They also pointed out that payment to the Canadian Institute for the Blind was made on a per capita basis with the Chest fund contributing $2.50 per capita per month.

Red Radio Warns Of War Resumption

NANKING, April 7 (AP). — The Communist radio tonight laid the groundwork for immediate resumption of China's long and bloody civil war.

In a broadcast heard in Shanghai, the radio charged the Government with using the long truce to build up its armed might.

The only course open to the Reds "is to cross the Yangtze, wipe out the Kuomintang bandit army and capture alive every war criminal," the radio said.

Spring Concert At Normal Well Received

An appreciative audience last night attended the first performance of the Victoria Normal School annual Spring concert in the school auditorium.

The program will be presented again tonight and Saturday evening at 8:15 o'clock.

The well-orgonized program included drama, folk singing, dancing, choral singing and two-piano teamwork.

A fantasy entitled "The Sentimental Scarecrow," a colorful and amusing play, was well received.

Pearl Scott and Elizabeth Vey delighted the capacity audience with their playing of Bach's "Blithe Bells."

Included was folk dancing and singing from the British Isles; the traditional "Irish Pith," an English dance, "Sellenger's Round," and the intricate Scottish dance, "Petronella."

TWO PIANOS

The next features were two-piano selections by Jean Graham and Sheila Besley, "The Arrival of the Queen of Sheba," by Handel, and the light air, "Country Dance," by Gertrude Keenan.

The scene of the concert switched to ancient times and the play, "Circe's Palance," based on an episode from Homer's Odyssey.

Following intermission singing the first part of the ode, "The New Earth," by Henry Hadley was presented.

The final performance for the evening was a comedy entitled "The Chan's Diamond," which tells the story of a Cockney family and its adventures with jewel thieves and Scotland Yard.

Director of music and drama is B. Gaddes.

30-Day Sentence For Victoria Man

CENTRALIA, April 7 (CP).—Joseph Cherry, 27, of Victoria, B.C., had started serving a 30-day sentence in the Lewis County jail today after being found guilty on three counts of first degree forgery. He was accused of signing the name of Louis Horne of Centralia to three cheques of $20 each.

Jury Hears Sam Carr Testify; Will Consider Verdict Today

OTTAWA, April 7 (CP).—The spectacular trial of Sam Carr rolled through its third day today with blunt denials by the accused of any link with Russian espionage and emphatic appeals by counsel to the jury on behalf of both his innocence and guilt.

The case will go to the 11 men of the jury tomorrow. The 12th juror fell ill today and was released with the accused's approval.

It was Carr himself, cool and collected and occasionally grinning, who provided the court, including some 100 spectators with three hours of testimony in which he:

1. Said he knew no officials of the Russian Embassy here and was "not anxious to know them."

2. Denied with force that he would place his loyalties to Russia ahead of those to Canada and added that he saw no reason why their interests should conflict when neither had anything the other wanted.

3. Denied the evidence of Dr. John Soboloff of Toronto that Carr had asked him in 1945 to sign a passport application "to get someone in or out of the country."

4. Maintained that his activities for the Communist movement did not require him to use deceit or illegal methods or subterfuge.

Carr denied that the first he heard of the spy probe was when it was announced February 15, 1946, and flared across newspapers in New York.

It was the Soboloff evidence which Carr's lawyer, Joseph Sedgwick, singled out in his hour-long address to the jury as "the one living link" between Carr and the conspiracy to get a passport for an agent operating in Los Angeles under the name of Ignacy Witcak.

Sedgwick renewed Carr's contention that Soboloff had apparently been "panic stricken" in 1946 when the R.C.M.P. came to him and asked about the application he had signed, had sought a refuge, recalled the publicity given Carr, knew Carr was out of the country, and decided to pin the blame on him.

"COVERING UP"

Soboloff, said Sedgwick, was covering up for someone else than Carr.

John R. Cartwright, Crown lawyer, in another hour address, maintained that Soboloff's evidence tied in with other evidence that the Russians had someone in the passport office falsify a 1937 application by the real Witcak to make way for a 1945 renewal for the agent.

The Crown, he said, had produced sufficient evidence to show that the passport had been falsified, that the Russian documents indicated Carr had figured in the scheme, that Igor Gouzenko said it was Carr, that Soboloff had said Carr asked him to sign the form that was found falsified.

House Passes Charities Bill

TORONTO, April 7 (CP).—The Ontario Government's Charities Bill was given final reading in the Legislature today despite five Opposition attempts to have the bill amended further.

Three Opposition amendments were defeated 47 to 34 and the other two were ruled out of order by the Speaker whose rulings were upheld by the same vote.

The bill provides that charitable foundations, such as the Atkinson Foundation, owners of The Toronto Daily Star and The Star Weekly, be required to dispose of all but 10 per cent of their interest in any business.

As amended at the committee stage, the bill provides that existing charitable foundations must comply with the act's terms within seven years; that trustees may buy an interest in the business when excess stock is disposed of; and that the public trustee confer each year with the foundation trustees to determine the profit and see that charities get their fair share.

T.C.A. Given Transfer Nod

OTTAWA, April 7 (CP).—The Commons railway committee today decided by a 6 to 5 vote to let Trans-Canada Air Lines go ahead with its proposed transfer of headquarters from Winnipeg to Montreal.

The decision was taken during an hour-long secret session, believed to have been stormy.

The vote, committee members disclosed later, cut across party lines and defeated a motion by Ralph Maybank (L., Winnipeg South Centre), parliamentary assistant to the Mines and Resources Minister, that the T.C.A. move be halted for one year.

Evidence Mounts In Bakeries Case

OTTAWA, April 7 (CP). — Justice Minister Garson said today in the Commons good progress is being made with the compilation of evidence needed in the prosecution of an alleged bread combine in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

He was replying to John Probe (C.C.F., Regina City) who asked what progress was being made with the prosecutions.

Gains Claimed By Guerrillas, Greeks Clash

ATHENS, April 7 (AP).—The General Staff implied today the Greek Army has pulled the teeth of the guerrilla offensive in the Grammos Mountains.

However, the guerrilla radio, voice of Greek Communists, declared the guerrillas have destroyed or captured one Government Army brigade and part of another, and "the wearing down of enemy forces is continuing with undiminished pressure."

A Government communique said all danger to Greece has been eliminated and counter-operations are developing "highly satisfactorily."

By the conflicting guerrilla radio account:

"Government losses in killed, wounded and captured in six days of fighting in the Grammos until the evening of April 6 amounted to more than 3,900 men and officers."

The Government formally protested to the United Nations Special Commission on the Balkans that the Communist-led guerrillas received "unconcealed and provocative aid" from Albania.

Say City Did Not Take Account Of Sales Tax for Education

Victoria did not take into account the municipal aid tax when requesting the Provincial Government to carry a greater share of education costs, Education Minister W. T. Straith declared in a letter received yesterday by Mayor Percy E. George.

Mr. Straith said he had received many letters from British Columbia municipalities asking the province to assume a greater share of education costs.

"In reading your letter, it is apparent that you have not given credit to the Provincial Government for the municipal aid tax which is now being received by the municipalities," he stated.

"The Government's policy has been to progressively remove the cost of education from land and in 1948 the Social Services and Municipal Aid Tax Act was introduced for that purpose," he continued. "In December, 1948, the first contribution of $2,000,000 was made to the municipalities and it is estimated that the municipal aid tax will produce $6,000,000 in 1949."

Mr. Straith said it had been found impossible to earmark the municipal aid tax for education because of two reasons: First, the amount of the tax received by some municipalities in the province exceeded the total of ordinary expenditures for school purposes; second, it is the prerogative of each municipality to allocate its revenue as its council sees fit.

"Nevertheless this new tax was introduced because the Government wished to provide a more general tax which would in some measure remove school costs from the land taxpayers; and in computing school costs in municipalities credit should be given for this municipal aid tax by each municipality," stated Mr. Straith.

He said the Provincial Government bears 60.25 per cent of Victoria's school costs, as compared with the municipal contribution of 29.72 per cent.

URGES POLLING PLACES

The present system of having only one voting place in Victoria is "a distinct disadvantage to working people" in the opinion of the Victoria Civic Non-Partisan League. Hubert Lethaby, secretary, declared yesterday in a letter to City Council.

He said a recent meeting of the league had stressed the need for establishment of additional polling stations throughout the city.

"A resolution was unanimously passed describing the present polling facilities as inadequate; it was thought by the meeting, in view of the vast increase in numbers on the voters' list, and to ensure that such voters could record their ballots, that the city establish polling stations under a district plan," advised Mr. Lethaby.

FOURTH REQUEST

The fourth in a chain of letters requesting erection of "Stop" signs at the corner of Simcoe and Government Streets was received at City Hall yesterday from Mrs. G. F. Rawlings, 150 Government Street.

"On one occasion the impact of the cars sent one of them bouncing over the sidewalk until it came to rest on the front lawn of the corner house."

She said conditions at the intersection presented a hazard for children.

"Stop" signs for the corner were approved by City Council last week.

Non-Partisans Seeking New Members

Victoria Civic Non - Partisan League is currently making an appeal for increased membership, according to a recent statement from league officials.

In making the appeal the league spokesman emphasized that the organization is "not a policy-making body."

Its sole purpose, the statement says, is to "get the best available material elected to civic office and to leave the representatives elected to do the best job possible . . ."

The manner in which the league proposes to achieve its objects are as follows:

1. The members of the league are requested to send in suggestions of names of persons to form a nominating committee of 30 representative citizens.

2. This nominating committee will solicit suggestions of suitable persons as candidates.

The statement adds that the committee will interview suggested candidates to determine availability and qualifications.

Central membership will have final say on adoption of candidates for various civic posts, the announcement states.

Remand Seattle Chinese For Judgment to April 11

Chin Poy, Seattle Chinese, was remanded to Monday for judgment on his city police court trial for attempting to deceive a customs officer by concealing $10,000 in United States currency on his person, when he appeared before Magistrate H. C. Hall yesterday.

The remand came after J. Howard Harman, Crown prosecutor, said Chin was not charged with exporting United States currency.

Pointing out that if Chin's story that he brought the $10,000 from Seattle to buy the Don Mee Restaurant, Fisgard Street, was true, he still started back with only $3 less than he arrived with.

"He is charged with an attempt to deceive," he added.

"Over that trifling sum?" Magistrate Hall asked.

"Even if he had every right to take the money out there is an absolute duty on everyone crossing the border to declare all his currency," Mr. Harman said.

"If he fails to declare it, he must forfeit it to the Crown," he added.

Earlier in the trial, Joseph McKenna, Chin's lawyer, said Chin "legitimately took this money into Canada and he was simply taking it back. Under the Foreign Exchange Act he is entitled to do that."

Paul Dong, a Seattle student, testified to seeing Chin take his suitcase and stuff "big stacks of American bills" into his pockets before leaving for the Seattle airport on his way to Victoria.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Harman, Chin said he had "a little interest" in the Wah Mee Company of Hongkong, and sometimes did his banking in an account under that name in Seattle.

Asked if he was in the habit of carrying around sums of money as large as $10,000 he replied: "Sure."

Mr. McKenna argued that his client had produced all of his cash before the customs officers searched him and said the customs officers only became suspicious because the man had so much money and "perhaps because he was a Chinese."

Cites Ability To Adapt To New Jobs

The ability of men to adapt themselves to new positions by transferring their knowledge and ability to a new post, was described by Albert Sullivan last night.

He addressed members of the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club at a meeting held in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel.

Mr. Sullivan, former provincial inject, "Transferred Ability."

As an example of transferred ability and talent Mr. Sullivan used D'Arcy McGee, one of the Fathers of Confederation.

"He was a rebel in Ireland but in the new Canada his great ability came to full flower," he said.

In speaking of individual responsibility, Mr. Sullivan said: "I have seen and observed your actions from time to time and I can see that you realize what individual responsibility means. Your work as a unit has conveyed that to me. You are doing an excellent job and I feel that nothing can stop you."

Spring Show Termed Signal Success

Early Spring Show of the Victoria Horticultural Society wound up last night with the customary auction of the flowers, when displays of exhibitors go on sale to help society funds.

Officials reported the show a signal success with quality of exhibits high, though quantity was somewhat down from other years.

Great interest was displayed throughout the show, they said, in the exhibition of wild flower paintings by Mrs. I. M. Heaton, which covered one side of the showroom.

Next event on the society's agenda is the Spring Garden Festival, when the gardens of Victoria will be judged for quality and awards presented.

Warm Days, Cool Nights And No Floods

Normal weather conditions will rule out the possibility of floods this year even though the water content of the snow on the mountains is high, according to information in the hands of the Department of Lands and Forests.

In his report to the end of March this year, D. A. MacLean, hydraulic engineer in charge of snow surveys, declared the water content of snow in the North Thompson area is 85 per cent of last year.

This is taken as indicative of the entire Fraser River run-off system. The survey did not cover the entire Fraser basin.

The report stated the heaviest run-off is expected to come from the Okanagan, Similkameen and Skagit basins, and lower coast, which is anticipated to be 20 per cent above normal, but still less than last year.

Warm days and cool nights are required to avoid flooding, it was stated.

Large Audience at High School To Hear "Cavalcade of Music"

Value of instrumental music in the schools was emphasized last night at the "Calvalcade of Music" held in the Victoria High School auditorium.

Approximately 500 people listened to students from Greater Victoria elementary and high schools display their talent.

Nearly all the young musicians in the concert have had less than one year of training.

Arnold Trevett, well known in music circles in Victoria, spoke of the difficulty of training and obtaining instruments for the students.

"We are gradually getting facilities to carry on a much larger program in the schools," he said.

J. F. K. English, chairman of the Greater Victoria school band and orchestra committee, said: "It is our ambition to have 10 per cent of the boys and girls in the upper school grades playing some type of instrument. This would mean in the years to come nearly 1,000 children would be participating in our instrumental program.

"This Calvalcade of Music is in the form of an experiment, in which we are attempting to show the progress of music throughout the schools of Greater Victoria," he said.

Liberals Endorse Coalition in Strong Vote

THE Provincial Liberal convention sitting at Vancouver took the only wise course open to it yesterday when it returned an overwhelmingly strong endorsement of the Coalition Government under Premier Byron Johnson. The Premier's personal appeal to the 600 delegates preceded the voting on the resolution and the balloting settled the question, for the present at least. British Columbia citizens in far wider groups than narrow party circles were expecting and hoping for this result, which will take the present Administration to the polls in its strongest possible form.

Provincial Progressive Conservatives, with this example, will be in no mood to quarrel with the result. Not many will have illusions as to what the chances would be if the two mainline parties split now in provincial matters. If there was one section of the Liberal bloc which thought otherwise, they have been given their answer by the Liberal convention, and it will have considerable support among the general public, two-thirds of whom have declared twice at the polls that they do not want Socialism in any form.

With this start, British Columbia should be in position to go ahead with its tasks and its opportunities, without the threat of an upheaval in its governance such as Saskatchewan has suffered to its cost. Stability means a good deal to the Pacific province at this moment in its history, and there is no place where secure and sound policies will be more necessary than in government. Premier Johnson's no-party mandate will go far to ensure that result at the polls.

Balkanization Is Hampering Community

IT is a thousand pities that active steps leading to civic amalgamation in the Greater Victoria community have not been taken in any practical form up to the present time. Each day that passes discloses some fresh, and generally urgent, need of clearing away the outmoded boundaries and treating the southern tip of Vancouver Island for what it is, a closely integrated economic and civic whole. The latest example, and it is a serious one, is the present dispute over the proposed new high power aerial transmission line. One had hoped that the day of poles and overhead wires definitely was on the wane.

If Greater Victoria were one municipality representations could be made immediately to the Provincial Government, the Corporation, the power company, the Town Planning Commission and to all concerned —so that representatives could sit down around a common table to devise the best means of bringing additional power into the city, without setting up a material fire and safety hazard at the same time. If these four municipalities were one unit, the "Capital City Plan" would long ago have been taken out of its pigeon-hole; the Province and the united community would have learned to do things in common, each bearing a fair share of the cost; and there would be no more talk of erecting further skyline poles in a community where street cars have been removed.

As matters stand, no agency acting alone will likely be able to achieve the vision which has long been Victoria's dream from a scenic and community-planning standpoint. Meanwhile, because the objection exists in clear and unabridged terms, the protest of Fire Chief Robert Brindle against the proposed aerial line will have to be taken into account by the city.

Another Bleak Year Ahead of Britons

AT least it can be said of his budget that Sir Stafford Cripps hews strictly to the austerity he thinks is the proper economic remedy for the British people. The ascetic Chancellor of the Exchequer has made no concession to popular demand, and Britons have yet another bleak year ahead of them. He quite obviously believes the United Kingdom should emerge from its postwar predicaments the hard way.

Whether Socialistic policies have contributed unnecessarily to the prolonged frugality of British life is of course for the people of that country to judge, and they will have the chance to express themselves on the subject within a year. What is apparent is that political considerations of this nature do not daunt Sir Stafford, though already his budget is causing some heartburning among his party colleagues. The Labor Party in general, with its roots closer to the public and its attention on the next election, seems to be as disturbed by thought of continued austerity as does its political opposition.

Political aspects apart, the coming year does not offer much new promise for a people already weighted with ten years of restricted living. Income tax at a basic rate of 45 per cent, twelvepence of fresh meat per person per week, cigarettes at 70 cents for 20, heavy purchase taxes—these and other equally stringent measures bespeak a state of affairs sadly at odds with original postwar hopes.

In more fortunate countries such as this one, the thought will be general that a nation that held the wartime fort so valiantly against great odds is having peacetime difficulties beyond its just deserts. Fate moves mysteriously, and seemingly in Sir Stafford Cripps it has an instrument that does not favor any easy way out.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

IF service in a uniform betokens kinship with a country, as well it might, then Canada has a population in tune with the nuances of national life.

Every third man you meet is an ex-serviceman.

I confess I hadn't thought the proportion would be quite so large, but apparently it is. Time was when every able-bodied man picked up his musket when the call came and left the home fires to be tended by womenfolk; the complexities of modern warfare, which do not stop at the battlefield, makes that impossible nowadays. But seemingly the patriotic record is as good now as ever.

Recently the United States Veterans Administration announced that 18,800,000 Americans, or about one out of every five adults, are war veterans. Inquiry by The Legionary disclosed that the Canadian proportion is similar.

According to figures supplied by D.V.A. officials there are about 1,350,000 surviving veterans of Canada's forces of both world wars; namely, 350,000 World War I veterans and 900,000 World War II veterans. Some 60,000 of them, incidentally, served in both wars.

ONE IN EVERY THREE

In addition there are about 100,000 Canadian residents who served with British and Allied forces, bringing the grand total to 1,350,000 ex-servicemen. Using the 1941 census figure of 7,190,000 adults, this means that one out of every 5.32 adults in the Dominion is a war veteran.

Probably a little better than half of the adult population is female, so that about one man in every three has served Canada in military uniform. There are also some 49,000 ex-servicewomen scattered about the Dominion.

This is not to infer that every third man you meet is potential material for any third world emergency, for most of the war veterans are rusty by this time, physically at least; but it does indicate that Canada has been well served in times of crisis.

The foregoing has to do with Canadian survivors of both world wars. The Legionary is equally concerned with those who died.

WAR MEMORIALS

Some 42,000 Canadian servicemen did not return from World War II, and The Legionary is anxious that they should be commemorated by the erection of suitable memorials. It has urged that each branch of the Canadian Legion should give the lead in its own community.

There are still many communities, it seems, where nothing has been done to acknowledge in tangible public form the sacrifice of their own particular war dead. In some cases victims of World War I have not yet been honored by a memorial.

So many stone war monuments are extant today that an omission belonging to the older war seems hardly possible. There have been few similar memorials erected in honor of the dead of the war just ended.

The temper of the times seems to be against a repetition of cenotaphs and the like, and the addition of the figures "1939-45" on existing memorials has sufficed in numerous instances.

It would not have been necessary, however, to duplicate the stone monuments fashioned after World War I. There are other ways of paying tribute to the dead besides granite columns or places wherein to make whoopee. A garden of remembrance, for example, would be a memorial of pleasing value to a community yet by its nature tending to keep in the forefront of memory the purpose for which it was designed.

UNEASY FEELING

The fashion now is to erect swimming pools, stadiums, recreation grounds and other conveniences that can be enjoyed by the living. There is something to be said for such a departure from immemorial custom, although this column has an uneasy feeling about people poaching on the preserves of the dead by turning memorials to their own advantage.

Family headstones, at least, would seem to vitiate the idea that when the head of the household dies the thing to do is to build a rumpus room and name it in his honor.

It is always said, of course, that if the war dead could speak they would endorse these amenity projects, though I think this is taking so much for granted as to be presumptious.

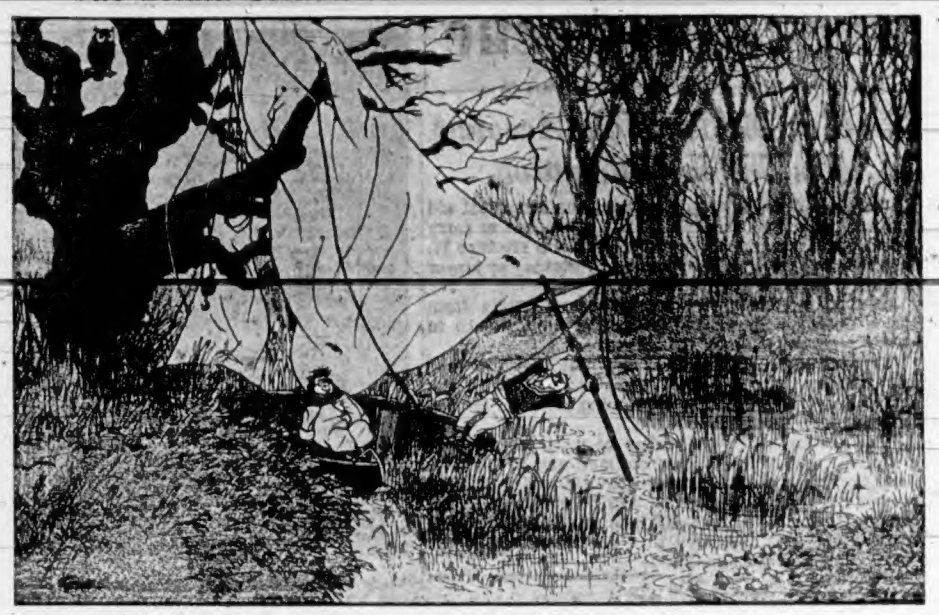

If one believes in the continuity of human affairs, in fact, one might be tempted to associate the vicissitudes of the Victoria Memorial Ice Arena with some faint stirring of protest from those whom it is ostensibly designed to honor.

How long, in any case, I wonder, will the patrons of this ice palace continue to remember that it is supposed to be a memorial arena?

Anyway The Legionary urges its supporters not to forget the men who died. I hope Victorians, as well as all other Canadians—especially those who may benefit by things done in the commemoration of war dead—will not either.

THE most powerful political body in Russia—the All-Union Party Congress—is expected to be convened during the next few months in Moscow.

It will be the first time the Communist supreme authority, composed of party leaders from all over Russia, has been convoked since 1939, and only the second time since 1934.

Why Premier Stalin plans to call the national party congress at this time is unannounced, but it is undoubtedly connected with the current Russian and world crises.

The all-union body will probably be asked to approve the policies the Kremlin has worked out to meet the challenges to the Bolsheviks raised by the North Atlantic Defence Pact, and the rebellion of Marshal Tito in Yugoslavia against Moscow's dictation.

The congress will elect members of the Politburo, the Communist Central Committee, and other top members of the party hierarchy.

It is conceivable if Stalin is in bad physical condition—he is 69 years old —that the All-Union Party Congress will be asked to approve the plan for Soviet succession. The purpose would be to avoid possibility of palace revolt should Stalin die suddenly.

* * * * *

About the only thing certain is that if the party congress is held it will simply rubber-stamp the program Stalin has prepared. But the importance of the convocation of the Communist control body at this time can hardly be overestimated.

The congress, which meets irregularly and infrequently, has in the past been summoned only when the Kremlin figured it had reached an impasse, contemplated switching policy, and wanted broad Communist party approval.

At the 1927 congress, for example, Stalin crushed the Trotskyite opposition, announced the first five-year plan, and started nationalization of the land.

In 1934 the Kremlin obtained party approval for the collective-security policy later pushed by Maxim Litvinov, and laid the groundwork for the party purge and the Moscow treason trials.

At the last party congress—in 1939—the purge was ended. Litvinov and collective security were dropped, V. M. Molotov took over the Foreign Ministry, and the Soviets adopted an isolationist line which culminated in the Hitler-Stalin pact.

It is obvious the Soviet Union is now facing problems as serious as any with which the Kremlin was struggling in 1927, 1934 or 1939. Molotov's Western European policy seems to have resulted disastrously for Russia. The conclusion of the North Atlantic Defence Pact raises the probability that Red Army domination of the Continent has ended.

The Kremlin's threats to Western Europe have apparently created the thing Moscow fears most—a Western military combination potentially strong enough to destroy the Russian Communist Government.

Marshal Tito is rebelling against Soviet dictation in Yugoslavia.

Unrest prevails inside the Eastern European satellite states.

With these and possibly other headaches to be laid before the projected congress, what new policies will Stalin propose? That is the question which is stirring world speculation.

Stalin might ask—which would be tantamount to receiving—authority for Russia to: Cut relations with the West and pull back into isolation; withdraw from the United Nations; try to break the North Atlantic Defence Pact, even at the risk of starting a world war; support a Communist war to destroy Tito's rule; make a compromise settlement with the West which would end the Berlin blockade and result in permanent peace settlements with Germany and Austria.

Authoritative information is absolutely lacking, but most observers seem to think chances favor Russia cutting herself off from the West, retiring into isolation, and trying to undermine democratic capitalism by conspiratorial methods.

The international air will be clearer after Stalin, Molotov and other party leaders make their policy speeches and state their recommendations for Soviet action. At least Western powers will know better what to expect from Moscow.

While convocation of the All-Union Party Congress has not been announced officially, Soviet constituent republicans are holding preparatory meetings. Russia is again faced with making fundamental policy decisions.

LOST HOME BY FIRE

Sir,—Another Saanich home has been lost by fire.

Last year when the Sadler home was destroyed the Saanich Council together with the citizens of Victoria took it upon themselves to replace the home. More than $10,000 was raised for this purpose. Are Mr. and Mrs. Chornlesky to receive the same treatment as the Sadlers? Both Mr. and Mrs. Chornlesky are veterans and have lost everything. They have no more veterans' credits. Surely something can be done for them.

THE SCRIPTURES

Sir,—Many thanks to Mr. Tom Taylor for his efforts in "Thinking Aloud" to arouse those who are teetotal in their thinking.

It is to be hoped that much thought will be provoked by his remarks in The Colonist of April 2 on the new translation of the Bible which is being considered.

The sentence: "The Bible is not as other books; to the Christian world it is THE book", should be pondered by all who desire the good of humanity.

It is obvious to all who think clearly that the collection of books known as the Bible came into existence in precisely the same manner as have all other collections of writings. Ideas took shape in minds and were written down.

The unique position given to the Bible has arisen from the nature of its contents and from the dearth of reading matter until comparatively recent times.

Throughout the ages leaders of thought have seen that the ability to discuss is the sole peculiarly human characteristic. Man became "a living soul" when the power of speech developed. Later the same thought is expressed in: "The word was God." In past times those who could handle words well were considered to be inspired. Often greater reverence was accorded to the words of a prophet, or king, after they came to be written.

The amazing variety of ideas expressed in the books of the Bible makes it a gold mine for the lover of controversy. Biblical quotations can be found to support every point of view. Herein lies its vitality and its danger. A danger which has always been very clear to those who wished to stifle thought in order to keep themselves in power.

To the discerning mind one theme recurs in nearly every book of the Bible and accounts for the love and reverence given to it by noble characters in many generations. It is the theme of man, the human mind, as part of God, the all-embracing Mind-Spirit.

In, and out, of the Bible in an endless variety of words this theme has been expressed by lovers of humanity in every age. No writer has summed it up better than he who said: "He that dwelleth in love (fellowship—altruism) dwelleth in God, and God in him," for God is Love (co-operation—compromise).

To look to a leader, or a book, to make the way ahead plain is evidence of an adolescent attitude of mind. Only by reflection and discussion on the part of all can we solve our problems and so bring world harmony.

The Hills

Out of the complicated house come I
To walk beneath the sky.
Here mud and stones and turf, here everything
Is mutely comforting.
Now hung upon the twigs and thorns appear
A host of lovely raindrops cold and clear.
And on the bank
Or deep in brambly hedges dank
The small birds nip about and say:
"Brothers, the Spring is not so far away!"
The hills like mother-giantesses old
Lie in the cold,
And with a complete patience, let
The cows come cropping on their bosoms wet,
And even tolerate that such as I
Should wander by
With paltry leathern heel which cannot harm
Their bodies calm;
And, with a heart they cannot know, to bless
The enormous power of their peacefulness.

The Holy Curiosity

(From The Peterborough Examiner)

IN his newly published autobiography Dr. Albert Einstein tells us that when he was a boy he disliked school lessons and examinations. He wanted to be let alone so that he could study what interested him. Commenting on our systems of education, he says: "It is nothing short of a miracle that modern methods of instruction have not yet entirely strangled the holy curiosity of enquiry."

It is indeed a miracle, but we think that we can anticipate some of the answers which school teachers and university instructors will make to the questions which are implicit in what Dr. Einstein has said.

In the first place, young Einstein was a boy of powerful curiosity; he wanted to learn a great many things and he was willing to do a great deal of work to achieve that end. Most boys and girls do not want to learn anything; they have no special curiosity, and their enthusiasms burn out quickly; left to themselves they would study only what is easy, or of trivial value.

Next, young Einstein had the knack of teaching himself; he neither expected, nor wanted, his teachers to provide him with predigested information. The student who teaches himself gains more pleasure and more lasting value from his education than those who cast the responsibility for educating them upon their teachers, but the self-educators are few. Confronted with large classes of intellectual muralings the teacher must depend on lectures and examinations to show any kind of result.

We sympathize with the teachers, for their job is to put something, somehow, into the heads of great masses of young people who are indifferent to knowledge, or hostile toward it, or basically ineducable. It is part of our democratic belief that we should educate everybody, whether he wants to be educated, or shows any signs that he can benefit by education. We refuse to consider the possibility that there may be, in our population, a lump which education cannot leaven.

And in our concern for mass education we shamefully neglect the handful of brilliant pupils and the very occasional genius who, when schooldays are over, will be honored in their generation, and the glory of their time. It is in this respect that private schools can still outstrip our public schools.

It is obviously out of the question that every boy and girl should be fully responsible for his own education; most boys and girls do not know what they want well enough for that. Nevertheless, this declaration by one of the great men of our day has given us a chance to view our school system afresh, and to see that, in its concern for mass-production, it leaves small scope for the gifted individual. The holy curiosity of enquiry gets short shrift when curricula must be followed and the examination Moloch satisfied.

Cripps Wins Battle On Budget

LONDON, April 7 (CP).—The so-called "Battle of the Budget" was waged behind closed doors today and indications were that the Labor Government had the situation well in hand.

Threats of revolt within the party against what the newspapers termed the "misery" Budget apparently fizzled out.

Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, emerged smiling from the two-hour meeting of the Parliamentary Labor Party, one of the largest such gatherings since the Government took office. Sir Stafford was reported to have won endorsement of the tough new Budget he brought down in the Commons Wednesday.

ACCEPT EXPLANATION

Back-bench critics were understood to have accepted his explanation that policies are realistic and inevitable.

The parliamentary correspondent of The Evening Star described the meeting as a personal triumph for the Chancellor.

The Labor back-benchers opened fire on the Budget Wednesday night, terming it "appalling," "reactionary" and "not a Socialist Budget."

At today's meeting, it was understood the Labor critics concentrated their attack on proposals to increase retail prices of meat, butter, cheese and margarine, the failure to reduce income and purchase taxes and the imposition of new charges for telephone service.

Sir Stafford pointed out that the amount added to weekly food costs was only a few pennies for each ration book.

There was particular bitterness in sections of the party which had been urging a cut in the cost of living as a means of consolidating Labor support in the country before the next general election.

U.S. Must Reinforce Frontiers in Europe

Interpreting the News

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
A.P. Foreign Affairs Analyst

During all the discussion preliminary to the signing of the Atlantic Alliance one fact was obvious. Pact or no pact, as long as United States soldiers occupy Germany, a Russian attack on Western Europe would be an attack on the United States and involve her in immediate war.

During all the talk about reserving the right of Congress to declare war, observers were well aware of the actualities of such a situation, recalling that America went to war on the Sunday of Pearl Harbor through a Presidential order putting into effect plans which already had been made. The Congressional declaration which followed was a confirmation, not an initiation.

Now, through official statements and the Army Day speeches of high military authorities, the picture of America's strategic position with relation to Europe is being made clear.

The "Iron Curtain," western boundary of the Russian sphere, is considered the United States' frontier. And United States military might is to be concentrated, as is normal in all military conceptions, on the frontier, rather than being kept in reserve too far behind the line of possible action.

This does not necessarily mean that the United States Army, ten times as strong as before the Great War but still not adequate for a major campaign, will be moved to France or Germany; to do so would [illegible] efforts to place Western Europe on its economic feet.

An army, at any rate, is only one constituent of military might, as under the Recovery Program, the prime effort will be to help United States allies help themselves.

The idea seems to be to rearm Western Europe to the point where it can, with the help of such troops as we have there, and with the cover of our air forces now based in England and Germany, stand against aggression until full mobilization can be effected on both sides of the Atlantic.

The rearmament program, as outlined so far, does not mean that a vast munitions industry is to be thrown into high gear in the United States all at once. Much of this rearming against the off-chance of war can be done through the issue of American reserve equipment to Europe's manpower.

BASED IN ENGLAND

As I understand it, the Allied strategists think that, with the atom bombers to help, 40, 50 or 60 divisions would be able to hold Western Europe during the early days of a war, something which would have been considered impos[illegible] bombers are being based in England in increasing numbers, apparently on a permanent basis.

Thus, instead of a vast increase in the overall armaments program, part of the emphasis apparently will merely shift from the United States to Europe. Not that the United States will not be up to her ears in anything that breaks, but that the frontier is the first point to reinforce.

Yugoslavs Imprison Eight Hungarians

NOVI SAD, Yugoslavia, April 7 (AP).—Eight prisoners of Hungarian descent today drew sentences ranging from seven to nine years in Yugoslavia's first "spy trial" against alleged agents of her neighbors in the association of the Communist International Information Bureau (Cominform).

All of them confessed their guilt on charges of entering Yugoslavia illegally, spreading propaganda, and attempting to collect military information.

Members of the party were last seen together at 9 p.m. last night as they planned to go to a dance south of Brandon.

Police said the car, traveling south on the highway, pulled to the right-hand side of the road as another car approached from the opposite direction. It struck the rear of the stationary rotary snowplough parked on the shoulder of the highway and also facing south.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, April 7 (AP).—Workers planning to come to Alaska to find work today were urged to stay away in statements issued by labor union officials.

Given Vote Of Confidence

VANCOUVER, April 7 (CP).—Ernest G. Sherwood received a vote of confidence today from the executive board of Vancouver Centre's Progressive Conservative Association.

Mr. Sherwood will run as party representative for the riding in the next Federal election.

A motion had been called for a new nominating convention to select a new candidate but it was defeated by the board.

Three board officers, starting the protest move, said the convention had been conducted in an "unconstitutional" manner.

Newfoundland Moves to Avert Food Crisis in Labrador Post

ST. JOHN'S, April 7 (CP). — Canada's new province marshalled its forces today to avert threatened starvation in one of its Labrador outposts.

Dorothy Judd, international Grenfell Association nurse at St. Mary's Bay, in Battle Harbor about 40 miles north of the tip of Newfoundland, reported in a terse telegram to the Government here that "to avert starvation of people food must be got here somehow."

ORDERS PLANE

Premier Joseph Smallwood immediately ordered a plane to the scene. The nearest was at St. Anthony's, near the northernmost point of the island.

Newfoundland Airways, owner of the plane, could not say at once whether it was able to take off.

Weather officials said that although conditions were foggy here clear skies prevailed on the western side of the island.

Miss Judd, a native of London, England, described the plight of villagers at the isolated settlement of some 100 as desperate. She said babies "are being fed on flour, water and molasses-water as there is no milk or rolled oats."

NEED HELP URGENTLY

Miss Judd said in her message "A large number of expectant mothers and babies need immediate help. I appeal to you to use your influence to save fishermen and their families before it is too late."

St. Mary's is about 100 miles southeast of Goose Bay. The message was sent to J. R. Smallwood, sworn in as Newfoundland's Interim Premier last Thursday.

Oddities

TORONTO, April 7 (CP). — One Toronto food market is selling first-grade butter at 49 cents a pound, nine cents below the Government wholesale floor price, but Operator Dave Davies says he stil makes a profit of "about one cent a pound."

"I am buying the butter by the ton from Saskatchewan," said Davies, who established the bargain price to attract customers. Elsewhere in the city butter sold from 56 to 62 cents.

YARDVILLE, N.J., April 7 (AP). —Even motorists who had a good answer to the question "where's the fire?" will start getting traffic tickets here.

Police Chief Robert Waterson has warned volunteer firemen to stop exceeding the speed limit when they answer alarms.

ROCHDALE, Lancashire, England, April 7 (CP). — Stone slabs were hurled across the room by a gas explosion when 70-year-old Arthur Radcliffe lit the fire in his living-room.

The room was shattered, and Radcliffe, who escaped injury, found himself looking down a 12-foot well he did not know existed.

Contents of the well? Why, it contained aging bottles of beer and whisky.

TOKIO, April 7 (AP).—The top money-maker in Japan last year, the Finance Ministry said today, was money-lender Masamitsu Moriwaki.

His income was estimated at ¥6,000,000 yen (about $329,670).

But, the ministry complained, he hasn't paid his taxes.

"I have loaned 150,000,000 yen to others," Moriwaki said. "I have no cash."

Seven Killed In Car Crash

BRANDON, Man., April 7 (CP). — Seven persons—four men and three teen-age girls — were killed three miles south of here last night when their automobile crashed into the rear of a parked snowplough.

Order Crash Probe For Nanaimo Plane

A board of inquiry has been appointed to carry out a formal investigation of the plane accident near Nanaimo on April 2, Hon. Lionel Chevrier, Minister of Transport, told The Colonist Ottawa correspondent yesterday.

The crash occurred in Indian reserve territory a short distance from the Up-Island city when Douglas Best and Dennis Moxey took their light Tiger Moth trainer plane up from Cassidy for early morning flight.

Welch Speaks For Coalition

COURTENAY, April 7.—A strong plea for continuation of the Coalition between Provincial Liberals and Conservatives was voiced at a meeting of the Comox Central Liberal Association by H. J. Welch, M.L.A. for Comox Riding.

The member told his audience that the issue before the voters at the next election would be one of free enterprise versus socialism, and that only by means of a Coalition could the Province continue, uninterrupted, its present march of progress.

Touching on his own work in behalf of Comox Riding, Mr. Welch noted that since his election, the Public Works Department alone has spent more than $7,000,000 in the constituency.

"Of course, I do not claim complete credit for this," he stated, "but I like to think it was partially due to my efforts."

Mr. Welch welcomed the revival of strong Liberal and Conservative organizations in the riding, and said this was an indication of renewed interest in maintaining the present system of free enterprise, unhampered by excessive Government controls.

Bring Up Body On East Coast

CAMPBELL RIVER, April 7.—The body of Fred Gunther, a 22-year-old logger, was recovered from 40 feet of water in Menzies Bay, 12 miles north of here on the East Coast of Vancouver Island. Gunther was drowned while at work Wednesday. An inquest has been ordered.

Liberals Seek Work On Road At Courtenay

COURTENAY, April 7 — Roy Cliffe was re-elected president of the Comox Central Liberal Association. Wallace Baikie was named vice - president; Archie Watson, secretary, and Wilfred Anderton, treasurer.

Delegates to the convention are Wallace Baikie, Comox; Albert F. Grant, Sandwick; C. O. Dennison, Fanny Bay, and Roley Mitchell, Courtenay. George Albright, Cumberland, was also nominated, but declined.

A resolution put forward by Mr. Albright urged renewal of the Lake Trail-Bevan-Cumberland Road, and was adopted by the meeting.

Also endorsed by the meeting were resolutions requesting a hard surface for the Lower Headquarters Road to Sandwick school, and requesting the Minister of Transport transfer the Nanaimo-Courtenay mail contract from the E. & N. Railway to Vancouver Island Coach Lines, if the present service is not improved shortly.

To Have Grant At View Royal

VIEW ROYAL, April 7.—The playground committee of the Greater Victoria School Board has earmarked a grant for the development of View Royal School grounds. The grant will be available when a by-law is approved by the ratepayers.

A committee appointed by the View Royal Community Association under Clifford Bate to investigate possible playground sites has assured the board of manpower to assist in the work on the grounds as soon as plans are approved.

A by-law for View Royal ratepayers to vote the necessary funds for the new Helmcken Road School is expected to be presented in six weeks, according to Trustee Austin I. Curtis.

Nanaimo Board of Trade Hears About Sales Tax

NANAIMO, April 7—C. F. Detwiler of the Social Security and Municipal Aid Tax Department told the Nanaimo Board of Trade that it and other organizations had paved the way for the Government to put the 2 per cent sales tax into effect. He said many thousand questions about the tax had been answered.

He explained electrical accounting equipment used for the sales tax. It segregated delinquents in 600 classifications. It answered questions often heard as to how the Government knew it was getting all the sales tax. Money collected had by statute to be placed into consolidated revenue first. It was immediately transferred to a Social Security Fund.

Charles Beadnell announced a system for the collection and baling of waste paper would be in use April 15.

Reeve A. I. Thomas of Esquimalt said the mouth of Nanaimo River offered a wonderful site for industry since Campbell River power was available. He asserted Vancouver Island was held back because residents did not take full advantage of the natural resources.

Discover Body

PORT ALBERNI, April 7.—Police were able to identify as that of Alfred Alexander Ormsby, about 70, the body taken from the water in the harbor Thursday morning. Mr. Ormsby had been missing since March 1. He was a war veteran pensioner.

Langford Men Save Building

LANGFORD, April 7.—Langford Volunteer Fire Department saved a large barn from destruction on the farm of Aubrey Hull, Station Road, Happy Valley, at 3 p.m. Thursday. A small cedar sheep shelter near the barn was consumed by flames from a brush fire which spread with a sudden explosion.

Fire Chief Rodney Bayles believed the explosion had been caused by some old blasting caps in a pile of rubbish.

Mr. Hull summoned the Colwood Volunteer Fire Brigade, which relayed the call to Langford and followed the Langford unit to the fire. Fire Chief Bayles reported that 1,500 feet of hose had to be laid over two fences to reach the fire.

Firemen who attended were H. Beebe, R. Sewell, M. Allan, R. Haigh and R. Gilbert.

Langford Volunteer Fire Department is providing fire protection to Happy Valley on a temporary basis while a petition is being circulated requesting the fire protection committee to admit the valley to Langford Fire Protection District.

Leaves Family

Saanich Commerce Unit Concerned About Water

BRENTWOOD, April 7.—At a meeting of the Saanich Chamber of Commerce held recently in the Women's Institute Hall, Brentwood, the matter of irrigation for Saanich was brought up. Claude Butler, president, was appointed to represent the Saanich Chamber of Commerce on the committee of 14 which is studying the matter with a view of endeavoring to persuade Provincial and Federal authorities to undertake a large share of the cost of installing a system, which would be of great benefit to the Saanich Peninsula.

Several members stressed the fact that something of this nature must be done to assist dairy farmers, as the growth of population in the cities on the Mainland would soon reduce the amount of milk now brought from there.

The president reported on arrangements for a banquet to be held on April 20. The Brentwood Women's Institute will provide the supper, and V. C. Dawson will arrange the entertainment features.

BUILD NEW FERRY SLIP

Satisfaction was expressed at the progress being made with the construction of the new ferry slip.

Laurence Hafer reported that a rough draft of the new folder to advertise Saanich was now almost completed.

Capt. D. H. McKay was appointed to represent the chamber of commerce on the Vancouver Island Tourist Association.

V. C. Dawson and J. H. Smeth-urst reported on results of a special meeting held by the Saanich Council with regard to the revised Trade Licence By-Law.

Mr. Butler announced formation of the following committees: Finance and membership, J. D. Holloway, chairman; national affairs, William Bullock, chairman; civic affairs, including roads and transportation, V. C. Dawson, chairman; sports, Phillip Benn, Sr., chairman; water, C. O. Butler, chairman; agriculture, V. E. Virgin, chairman.

Need Trustees

VIEW ROYAL, April 7.—Annual meeting of the View Royal fire trustees will be held at 8 p.m. next Wednesday in the Community Hall.

Trustee W. B. Cole will read the report of J. W. Cross, chairman, who has resigned on his doctor's instructions.

Nomination and election of two trustees will take place. One will serve the unexpired two-year term of Mr. Cross, and the other a three-year term, replacing Harold Foxcroft, who resigned because of Up-Island duties.

Alberni Legion Requests Appointment of Official

ALBERNI, April 7.—An explanation of the Federal Minister of Labor that the number of claims through the local office did not warrant an unemployment insurance adjudicator here, was rejected by Somass Branch No. 169, Canadian Legion, Alberni.

The Legion pointed out that its complaint made no reference to the number of claims but rather to the delay in adjudications which left ex-servicemen seeking unemployment insurance waiting as long as a month pending decisions.

Alec Lockwood, president, declared that the minister's reply sidetracked the issue, and added that the Legion executive would again press its claim.

He cited an example of one army veteran who had been employed only 170 days since his discharge, and who was told at the local office he was ineligible to receive aid, but should have been permitted to count his army service which would have made him eligible. This case would have had to go to appeal, with long delay, Mr. Lockwood explained.

RECEIVE COMPLAINTS

Conditions at wartime housing projects here have been taken up by the branch, which is receiving written complaints from residents to be correlated into a brief for presentation to the authorities, J. C. Minkley reported on progress of the campaign.

The branch discussed the situation created by the local truckers' strike which threatens to leave the canteen without beer. Several members spoke strongly on both sides of the question. The Branch took no sides in the matter, and left to its executive the matter of negotiations in the hope that some acceptable settlement could be made.

Consider Plan For Cemetery At Courtenay

COURTENAY, April 7.—A proposal that Courtenay take over Sandwick United Cemetery was made to the City Council by Rev. J. S. Clark, who appeared for the cemetery committee of the United Church.

Mr. Clark said the committee was willing to hand over the cemetery to the city and to donate $1,000 to purchase an adjoining piece of property. Only stipulation to the donation was that the city transfer a small piece of the property to the church for possible future use.

The Sandwick United Cemetery can still take 1,000 to 1,500 graves, Mr. Clark said.

P.-T.A. Group Majority Favors Sex Education

By Colonist Reporter

VANCOUVER, April 7—More than 90 per cent of P.-T.A. groups in British Columbia are in favor of films on human reproduction for children in schools.

This was reported by Education Minister W. T. Straith in releasing results of a questionnaire in which 30 specific questions were asked on films submitted to P.-T.A. groups for approval.

More than 1,700 [illegible] show an overwhelming majority in favor.

SURVEY RESULTS

Here are the results of the survey:

With only 17 exceptions, parents are agreed that the films represent a desirable method of sex education.

Of the 1,700, 1,478 feel that parents do not give their children adequate information about the reproduction side of human life.

A majority, 1,236, favored going further than just showing films. They feel that teachers should answer questions asked by pupils after seeing the films.

The Department of Education plans to begin using the films in the school term beginning in September. Three films are planned for the course: one on plant growth for children ten to 12; another on human growth, for ages ten to 13, and a third on reproduction for the 14 to 17-year-old groups.

Almost unanimously, parents were in favor of showing the films in the order mentioned. Only sharp division of opinion reflected in the survey was whether the films should be shown to boys and girls separately or together.

For the most advanced film, parents voted 961 to 634 in favor of separate showings for boys and girls. For the secondary film on human growth the voting was 827 to 761 in favor of joint showings.

Parents candidly admitted that their children now get more information on the subject from their school and play companions than they do at home.

Overwhelmingly, by a vote of 1,665 out of 1,700, parents agreed that information on human reproduction is desirable for all children and young people. Only 19 did not think so and 16 were undecided.

Little Stories for Bedtime

PETER GROWS CURIOUS ABOUT OL' MISTAH BUZZARD

The more we have, the more we want;
At least I find that true
With almost everyone I know
Pray is it with you?

Peter Rabbit had learned so many curious and interesting things about Spotty the Turtle and Grandfather Frog that his head almost ached as he left the Smiling Pool and started for the Green Forest that morning. You would think that Peter's curiosity ought to have been satisfied for once, but it wasn't. You see curiosity is one of those things that seldom is really satisfied.

As Peter hopped along, lippety-lippety-lip, he looked up to see that Redtail the Hawk was not near enough to be dangerous. There was no sign of Redtail, but high up in the blue, blue sky, sailing round and round, was Ol' Mistah Buzzard. Now ever since Ol' Mistah Buzzard had come up the first time from way down in Ol' Virginny to make his home in the Green Forest for the Summer, Peter had been greatly interested in him. In the first place, no one else could sail and sail and sail without moving his wings as could Ol' Mistah Buzzard. In the second place, Ol' Mistah Buzzard was the only one whom Peter was acquainted with who had a bald head. King Eagle is called baldheaded, but isn't bald at all. On the other hand Ol' Mistah Buzzard, who isn't a Buzzard at all but a Vulture, hasn't a feather on his head. He told the story of how his family first became bald-headed and ever since then Peter had taken the liveliest interest in Ol' Mistah Buzzard.

This Spring, Ol' Mistah Buzzard had brought Mrs. Buzzard up from Ol' Virginny with him, and Peter had spent many hours watching them sail round and round high up in the blue, blue sky. So high, sometimes, that they were little more than specks. This morning, as he watched Ol' Mistah Buzzard, it suddenly popped into Peter's head that he hadn't seen Mrs. Buzzard for some time. Ol' Mistah Buzzard was alone now and he had been alone every time Peter had seen him of late only he, Peter, hadn't happened to think of it before.

Peter paused and gazed up at Ol' Mistah Buzzard thoughtfully. "I wonder," said he, thinking aloud as he sometimes does, "if anything can have happened to Ol' Mrs. Buzzard, or if she has grown tired of the Green Forest and gone back to her old home."

Peter gazed up at Ol' Mistah Buzzard thoughtfully.

He wrinkled his forehead in a way he has when he is puzzled or trying to think. Then as a thought popped into his head his face cleared. "I know!" he exclaimed. "It must be that Mrs. Buzzard is keeping house. Of course. Why didn't I think of that before. All my feathered friends, and some who are not my friends, have nests now, so why shouldn't Mistah and Mrs. Buzzard have a nest? They have. I feel it in my bones. They've got a nest somewhere and Mrs. Buzzard is taking care of the eggs, and that is why I haven't seen her lately. Now I wonder where that nest is. I should like to see it. I believe I'll have a look around in the Green Forest. Such big folks as Ol' Mistah and Mrs. Buzzard must have a big nest and it ought not to be hard to find it."

Fairly bubbling over with curiosity, Peter started to run again toward the Green Forest.

Next Story: Peter Rabbit's neck aches.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

According to Culbertson

(Copyright, 1949, by Ely Culbertson)

If the declarer in today's deal had been of "average" calibre, almost any defence would have been effective. South, however, was an expert; so West should have taken greater pains.

West, dealer.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
♥ 1	♠ 2	Dbl.	♠ 2
♥ 3	♠ 3	♥ 4	♠ 4
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

East's double of two diamonds was not good, but it was infinitely better than his partner's double of four spades! Even if West had defeated the enemy one trick—which he should have done—it would have been a Pyrrhic victory, since he could have made five hearts with the greatest ease.

West led the heart king and continued with the heart ace. Declarer, after a careful survey of his resources, blandly threw a diamond on the second trick. That brought an immediate shift from West—to diamonds! Dummy's ace was put up, and South ruffed a diamond with the trump queen. He led a spade to the king, ruffed another diamond with a high trump, went back to dummy with a trump, and ruffed away East's last diamond. Nothing could be simpler now than to re-enter dummy once more with a trump and discard two clubs on the established diamonds. At the end, South cheerfully conceded a club trick to the opponents, but the doubled contract was home.

The average declarer would lose this hand by unthinkingly ruffing West's second heart lead. After doing so, he would find it impossible to keep East off the lead, and East's automatic shift to clubs would defeat the contract.

So, South played well—but the same cannot be said about West. After the diamond discard by South, it was not too difficult for West to envisage what was going to happen if he shifted to diamonds. His shift should have been to trumps, to cut down the entries to dummy.

Other officers elected included: Vice-president, Mr. G. Darimont; secretary, Mr. N. N. Smith; treasurer, Mr. William Hardy; committees, technical, Mr. A. Macey, Mr. William Paret; program, Mr. H. G. Hirst; social and membership, Mrs. G. Wilkinson, Mrs. S. Wiggins. Mr. Hans Gruber was named musical director.

All offices are subject to ratification at the first public meeting in the Fall. Recitals of recorded music will commence in September. In addition to records there will be moving pictures, talks by prominent speakers, open forums on recorded music subjects, composer nights, tonality identification and similar topics of interest.

Membership is open to all and it was stressed that it is unnecessary to own records or phonograph, or to intend to, to be eligible to join. The principal object of the society is the group enjoyment of enduring recorded music by the largest possible number. Those unable to otherwise enjoy this interest are particularly invited. It is proposed to affiliate with the National Federation of Gramophone Societies of Great Britain.

After the business meeting a short varied recital of recorded music was presented on high fidelity equipment.

Brilliant Soprano Gives Concert Here

—Colonist Photo.

Madame Erna Sack, famed soprano, is pictured as she left the Empress Hotel for the Royal Theatre where she gave a concert last night.

Ovation Follows Ovation As Erna Sack Scores

Victoria audiences have been complimented several times this season for their appreciation of the artistry of a visiting musician, but the reception and almost continuous ovation given to Erna Sack at the Royal Victoria theatre last evening has seldom, if ever, been equalled here.

An overflow audience, seated rows deep on the stage, was thunderous in its applause of the phenomenal [illegible] rich lower register of Miss Sack's voice. It has been described as a "trick" voice—certainly, her ability to sustain her final note, sweet and clear, for what seems to the listener to be several seconds, is unique. She can throw her voice, almost like a ventriloquist, change tempo and volume slightly, with no apparent effort, so that a curious echo effect is achieved. She had a charming stage presence, especially when she smiled, and her little mannerisms added to, rather than detracted from, most of her numbers.

Many of the numbers she sang last evening are familiar to music lovers through recordings and the radio, and she is one artist who has certainly nothing to fear from television.

Opening with Handel's "Largo," she convinced the audience of her artistry in handling an instrument only heard once in many decades. Throughout the program, it was the more florid numbers which were given with fire and a feeling for their dramatic content. Her technical excellence made the Schubert group brilliant rather than emotionally moving.

The "Ave Maria," particularly, would have been more moving had the approach been simpler. She turned and repeated it for the benefit of the stage audience, and this second rendering was lovely, in its quietness. Her diction is faultless, and when, as the last of a most generous group of extras, she sang the "Sicilian Hymn," it was the most satisfying item of all, for sincerity.

The coloratura aria from Rossini's "Barber of Seville" was breathtaking in its brilliance of execution. Her trills were cleanly marked and her breath control beyond all praise. Upon conclusion of this number, the deafening applause continued for some minutes. As extras, she sang "Open Your Heart," by Bizet, and "La Danza," by Rossini.

Following the intermission, she sang several lighter compositions. She gave Flotow's "Last Rose of Summer," Dell'Aqua's lovely "La Villanelle," in which the bird notes were exquisite, the clever and gay little Swedish folk-song "Fjorton or Tro Jag Vist at Jag Va" which had the audience laughing aloud, and the ever-popular "Tales from the Vienna Woods." She delighted the audience with her rendering of "Come to the Woods," by the Canadian composer Charles Rice, which she turned and sang for those on the stage.

"Piniculi Finicula," she concluded with the "Sicilian Hymn" which was one of the highlights in an evening full of them. If she had not said a very charming but firm "Thank you, and good night" the audience would have been applauding her yet.

Gilbert Hall was at the piano, and his accompanying was artistic, particularly in the operatic numbers, when he got considerable tone from the elderly instrument.

Special mention was made of two of the girls at St. Ann's Academy who have, during the last year, gained high honors in St. Johns Ambulance Brigade, the 3rd and 4th cadets in Canada who were the only ones in British Columbia to receive the special service award for more than 100 hours of voluntary service. Miss Kathleen Coles and Miss Betsy Harrison were the recipients of this prize as a reward for their notable achievements.

ASSIST NEW CANADIAN

The immigration report given by Mrs. W. Rogers referred to the various entertainments given to the new Canadians from the displaced persons camps who are in Victoria.

Mrs. E. Bland, who has been in charge of the hospital visiting committee, said that twice a month all the patients in St. Joseph's Hospital have been visited with an average of 25 visits. By a unanimous vote, a life membership in the subdivision was arranged for Mrs. Alex Grant, award to be made at the membership tea in May.

The director, Most Rev. J. M. Hill, D.D., Bishop of Victoria, expressed pleasure in the record of the work of the organization and he congratulated Mrs. Rogers for her efforts for the new Canadians recently immigrated to Canada.

Famous Soprano Plans To Make Home in Canada

Bananas are her favorite fruit. Spaghetti is her favorite dish. She sings C above high C. Her name is Erna Sack.

She never smokes. She is a great meat eater. Her favorite color is pale blue and her favorite gems are diamonds and aquamarines.

Her hair is blonde, her eyes are blue and she is medium height. She has great charm and spontaniety.

Her husband, Hermann Sack, to whom she has been married for 18 years, says she is "the best human being in the world." Mr. Sack should be in a position to know.

A difficult question to answer was the one about favorite music, but Erna Sack finally said she loved the songs by Schuman and Schubert, waltzes and folk songs of many lands. The operas she likes to sing best are "Rigoletto" and "Lucia."

The German coloratura, who is said to have the highest voice in the world, is a youthful 41-years-of-age. She hasn't had time for hobbies or in fact anything outside the world of music.

She studied six years in Prague and Germany before making her debut in opera. She sang in opera five years before ever singing in concerts. Her soaring, golden voice has been heard in all the capitals of Europe as well as the Western Hemisphere, and she has several times sung with the great Italian tenor, Gigli.

Mr. Sack said her most exciting performance was the first time she appeared in Paris. When her concert was over, he thought a riot had broken out, so wild was her ovation.

A charming, kindly man, very proud of his celebrated wife, Hermann Sack is happy to tour the continents with the famous diva. But when not traveling Mr. and Mrs. Sack make their home in Rio de Janiero where they have a house overlooking the sea.

"But we plan to live in Canada too," Mr. Sack said. "In fact we have already bought a house in Montreal."

The Sacks, although this is only their second visit to the Dominion, have taken a great liking to the country for "its kindly people and climate." They will divide their time between Montreal and Rio when Erna is not singing for the remaining crowned heads of Europe or making records.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, April 7 (AP).—A mid-day selling thrust put the stock market in the minus column. Final prices were down fractions to more than a point. Trading volume expanded slightly on the way down. The same selective buying which has been present all week helped to steady the market. Most of the declines occurred during the noon hour.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO, April 7 (CP).—Prices slipped steadily lower as trading slowed from early briskness on the Toronto Stock Exchange. Golds showed the widest declines as key senior and junior producers lost their early advantages and moved into the minus column. Base metals continued their downward trend, and Western oils were forced down by profit-taking. Industrials held firm for most of the session, but tended to ease at the close.

London Market

LONDON, April 7 (Reuters).—The austerity budget sent share prices tumbling in the London Stock Exchange. No taxation relief to the entertainment and radio industries, no change in purchase tax, and small reduction in the price of beer resulted in heavy marking down in the prices of the shares concerned. Brewery losses were up to 5s 6d; stores, 2s 6d, and cinema and radios by 3s 6d.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, April 7 (AP).—Activity in grains jumped sharply, but price trends were highly confused. The sudden spurt in turnover followed announcement of the administration's proposed new farm program.

Winnipeg Grain

WINNIPEG, April 7 (CP).—Fair buying, attributed mostly to shippers in connection with overnight business, sent prices of oats and barley futures upward on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Oats also came in for some mill buying, and barley was taken by processors. Light offerings were well absorbed during the fairly active session.

Weary Contenders Meet Rested Champs Tonight

DETROIT, April 7 (AP). The final round for hockey's prized Stanley Cup gets under way here tomorrow [illegible] as a showdown battle of champions.

Crossing sticks in the best-of-seven final for the third time in five years are Toronto Maple Leafs, defending champions who finished fourth in the regular National Hockey League season, and Detroit Red Wings, winners of the 1948-49 N.H.L. crown.

This [illegible] performance gives the edge to Detroit, which beat Leafs seven times and tied them twice in 12 meetings.

But there's more to it than that. Detroit won the championship by piling up a long lead early in the year and protecting it through a prolonged [illegible] while Toronto, improving as the season dragged on, was at its best in the last month of the regular schedule.

QUICK FINISH

Leafs licked second-place Boston, four games to one in the semi-final while Detroit was struggling through a full seven game set with third-place Montreal.

The workmanlike way in which Toronto [illegible] off Boston poses the top question of the play-offs.

Will Leafs after a full week's rest be fresh for the renewal of the cup fight, or stale from inactivity?

And is it an advantage for Detroit to move directly into the finals from its prolonged struggle with Montreal which ended last Tuesday, or will Red Wings be tired?

The answer won't come until the teams skate onto Olympia Stadium ice tomorrow for the first face-off.

Coach Hap Day took his Maple Leafs to St. Catharines, Ont., last Wednesday for a series of strenuous workouts designed to sharpen the Toronto attack.

And if Red Wings are weary after the long Montreal series, Coach Tommy Ivan didn't recognize that fact when he called them out for a practice session at 8.30 this morning.

TWO MISSED WORKOUT

Everybody worked except Left-Winger Ted Lindsay, who rested a chest bruise he got in the last game against Montreal, and Gerry Couture who has an ailing leg. Both are expected to be ready for the Friday game.

Toronto's only major injury problem is Forward Howie Meeker, who broke his foot during the regular season and has seen no action in the play-offs.

Detroit and Toronto will play their first two games here Friday and Sunday, moving to Maple Leaf Gardens for games Wednesday and Saturday of next week. Game five, if necessary, will be played in Detroit Sunday, April 17, with a sixth in Toronto Wednesday, April 20, and No. 7 at Detroit Saturday, April 23.

The win gave the new champions a two-point margin over Oak Bay, who defeated V.H.S. Golds, 2-0, earlier in the week to retain a chance for a first-place tie.

Gladys Tingstad, Dot Pennell, Val Brown and Eria Highes scored for the winners.

Regina Caps Oust Trail To Reach Western Final

REGINA, April 7 (CP). Regina Capitals entered the semi-finals of Allan Cup competition and qualified for the Western Canada senior hockey final tonight by whipping Trail Smoke Eaters 6-2 to take their best-of-seven series in four straight games.

For Caps the game also meant the 18th consecutive contest that they had gone through undefeated. They became the first Regina team to enter the Western final since Regina Rangers went on to win the Allan Cup in 1941.

SMOOTH SAILING

More than 5,000 fans packed Queen City Gardens to see their powerful Western Canada Senior Hockey League champions eliminate the Smokies. Regina boasted 3-1 and 5-2 period leads before salting the game away with a singleton in the final session.

Centreman Bill Kyle with two goals and one assist paced the Regina attack. Sweeney Schriner, Red Tilson, Ab McDonald and Harvey Barnes notched the other Regina goals. Terry Cavanaugh and Frank Turik scored for Trail.

The Sportlight

By GRANTLAND RICE

Anyone who writes anything is entitled to a few prejudices likes and dislikes a few partisan angles.

These partisan turns might steer one off the beaten path a few degrees, for example, Harry Eddie more valuable to his team than his batting average can show.

I have another pet ballplayer No, it isn't Joe DiMaggio Stan Musial, Ted Williams or Lou Boudreau His name is Harry Brecheen, often known as The Cat

SKINNY VETERAN

He was born at Broken Bow, Oklahoma, back in 1914, 35 years ago He is a skinny fellow weighing around 160 or 162 pounds often much under that in hot weather

It took Harry nine years to reach the big league via Greenville, Owensville, Bartlesville, Portsmouth, Houston and Columbus It's no soft ride to a big league job But error with St Louis and the Cardinals didn't bother Brecheen but it took a few years Only one year was in 1946 when he won 15 and lost 15 He had a sore arm for the first two months But The Cat came up for this defeat by beating the Boston Red Sox three times in the world series that year Last season at the age of 34 he won 20 games and led the Cardinals to the pennant, his earned run mark was 2.24, the best in the league

WINNING FORMULA

I asked him what made a Brecheen pitcher. "Control, that's the big thing," he replied. "A question of control over two pitches, a fast ball and a curve ball. But he must also have control and determination I had a bad start in baseball because I kept losing my temper and being sorry for myself on account of the bad breaks

"I won 8 and lost 14 in 1942 and I won 8 and lost 17 in 1943 I was a better pitcher than that Errors in back of me used to get me upset, make me sore But I was only a kid I took a beating to myself in 1944 and I won 20 games I found out the breaks even themselves up

"I knew in 1945 I was a better than a 17-17 pitcher I honestly got some terrible breaks that year I might have been a 25-game winner

"I was desperately anxious to reach the 20-game mark last Fall But down the stretch I had 16 wins and 12 defeats I had only five games left to pitch and the five were against the Cleveland Indians, the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees — the three leaders This meant I had to win four of these five games against three teams battling for the good old flag I suppose I could have said this was just another tough break I forgot about the tough breaks and settled down to a pitching job I happened to win all five, so I finished with 21 victories"

Newhouser on the Red Sox or the Indians would certainly be a 30 or a 33 game winner — the star pitcher in baseball But recently he hasn't gotten too much help from his Tiger mates. He won't admit this but it is true The Tigers haven't been hot What will Detroit do in 1949? "We'll be hustling, clawing, scrambling, fighting," Red Rolfe says. "Anyway, we'll be better."

No Big Changes Being Planned By Canadiens for Next Season

MONTREAL, April 7 (CP)—General Manager Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens said today the National Hockey League club will undergo some reorganization next season but emphasized that the changes would not be as sweeping as reported

Selke said he would try to close a few deals with the other N.H.L. clubs but added) "I know they won't give up their top players, and we don't want to give up ours either."

This was taken to mean that players like Maurice (Rocket) Richard and defenceman Kenny Reardon would not be placed on the trading block.

Selke said age may force the retirement of some of the veterans from the team that was eliminated by Detroit Red Wings from Stanley Cup play-offs last Tuesday.

Murph (Hardrock) Chamberlain Elmer Lach, already have announced their retirement from hockey. Of Lach, Selke said: "I guess it's up to me to find him a coaching job."

Asked what he thought the outcome of the Stanley Cup final would be Selke said: "Detroit is the better team but the Maple Leafs have that psychological advantage [illegible] up to the [illegible] ... I have had with the Red Wings in past seasons and [illegible]."

Better Bowling

By BILLY SIXTY

SINGLE SPEED [illegible]

[illegible] B [illegible] Of these three, Jim Watson [illegible] ords of every great hitter from Cobb to Musial [illegible] Newhouser has all the actions of every great pitcher.

HIDDEN-BALL TRICK

"A pitcher's control is quite important," Newhouser says. "Keep that ball hidden as long as possible Cy Young, the 511 game winner backs this up Cy had four different deliveries

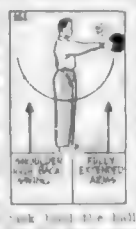

"I agree with Harry Brecheen Hal continued. Naturally a pitcher must have a fast ball and a curve ball But he must also have control and determination I had a bad start in baseball because I kept losing my temper and being sorry for myself on account of the bad breaks

"I won 8 and lost 14 in 1942 and I won 8 and lost 17 in 1943 I was a better pitcher than that Errors in back of me used to get me upset, make me sore But I was only a kid I took a beating to myself in 1944 and I won 29 games I found out the breaks even themselves up

"I knew in 1945 I was a better than a 17-17 pitcher I honestly got some terrible breaks that year I might have been a 25-game winner

"I was desperately anxious to reach the 20-game mark last Fall But down the stretch I had 16 wins and 12 defeats I had only five games left to pitch and the five were against the Cleveland Indians, the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees — the three leaders This meant I had to win four of these five games against three teams battling for the good old flag I suppose I could have said this was just another tough break I forgot about the tough breaks and settled down to a pitching job I happened to win all five, so I finished with 21 victories"

Newhouser on the Red Sox or the Indians would certainly be a 30 or a 33 game winner — the star pitcher in baseball But recently he hasn't gotten too much help from his Tiger mates. He won't admit this but it is true The Tigers haven't been hot What will Detroit do in 1949? "We'll be hustling, clawing, scrambling, fighting," Red Rolfe says. "Anyway, we'll be better."

[illegible] ball [illegible] ball [illegible] FULLY EXTENDED ARMS

[illegible] ball [illegible] Gibson's style is different from any of them. He doesn't have a [illegible] stretched ahead of him as he takes [illegible] Same effect, of course.

The break or hook of the ball is very slight and is readily controlled on either slow or fast alleys because of their terrific speed. One thing they have in common. They all deliver the ball from approximately 10 boards in from the gutter and speed enables them to shoot directly at the 1-3 pin pocket.

Any bowler who has natural speed, and I emphasize natural, can do well by learning from the members of this team. You must start the ball well to the right of the alley-centre and for accuracy you must swing through. Don't worry too much about angles of hook with a lot of speed.

SWEPT OVERBOARD

GLOUCESTER, Mass., April 7 (AP)—Mario Rinzi, a Boston fisherman, was swept to his death yesterday by a giant wave minutes after he had cheated the sea. Rinzi had been knocked into the water from his lookout perch on the trawler San Antonio. Other crew members pulled him back aboard. Then a second wave swept the craft and Rinzi was carried away.

And the Walls Came Tumbling

By JOSEPH McCORD

"Are you telling me?" Chester demanded wearily. "And the thought of that money coming to your father made me more impossible. Something made me afraid it would harm you. I know that money never could turn your head, but it was a fear of what it might do to you in this small town. I realized that it could bring you unhappiness. It was sure to stir up petty jealousies and perhaps the loss of friendships. I couldn't endure the idea. I even tried to tell you once. Just now I believe I said I had it all reasoned out to my satisfaction, but I'm aware it doesn't make sense to you. The trouble is that I don't know the words, Carol. It sounds outrageous, selfish. It is. But that's a part of it . . . just the same as I know you are the woman I've been trying to find from the beginning of things." Wistfulness crept into his voice. "I wish you'd find you've been waiting for me."

"You want me to be honest, don't you?" she asked softly.

"Surely. You'd never be anything but fair."

"I hope not. Then you know I'm going to tell you that I can't return your . . . your regard in the least. How could I? You asked me to believe you are sincere in what you say. I'm trying to do that. But I don't know you . . . the real you. As a friend I could like you very much, I have learned to, now. But you want so much more. I've no reason to think I ever could. Don't you see?"

"Yes. I expected that. Nothing more."

"There isn't anything more I can say, unless that I always will respect what you have told me. And that I'm sorry."

"I'm not sorry! I try to be fair, too, in most things. It didn't seem quite honest to go on caring the way I do, seeing you whenever I could . . . and not let you know where my hopes lay. Now you do. I almost had to tell you that I was fighting for your love, no matter if it were hopeless. And I won't believe it is . . . yet."

Chester rose and moved closer to Carol who had gotten to her feet at the same instant. They stood looking into each other's eyes without speaking. Then Carol suddenly found herself in his arms, crushed against him. His cheek was on her shining hair. Dimly she heard him whisper:

"My dear . . . my dear . . ."

For an instant Chester sensed the surrender of the slim body. Then she stiffened. Her hands pushed him away.

"No . . . no!" she exclaimed brokenly. His arms dropped to his sides.

"Sorry, Carol. But I love you so."

"Go away. Please!" she begged.

He walked toward the hall door leaving her standing there. About to leave the room, he turned to say quietly:

"I'll find my way out. And back." The significance of the last words was lost upon Carol as she stared at the near-by lamp. Her brown eyes were wide, filled with an expression that might have been momentary exultation, fright or shame. She was confused. She did not know how much time had elapsed before the sound of Aunt Cassie's step in the hall made her clutch at the lamp pull with frantic haste.

"Oh, you're still in here? I thought I heard the front door close, but I guess I must have been

Mrs. Steel came into the half-lighted room. She always made a close inspection of the lower floor before retiring, to make sure each piece of furniture was in its exact place. To be certain the firemen would find everything nice in case they were called in during the night. That was Andy's frequently offered explanation. There was nothing in the position of the parlor chairs to produce a comment although Cassandra sniffed the odor of cigarette smoke impatiently.

"Seems to me that Dennison man's coming here pretty often of late, ain't he?"

There was no reply. Aunt Cassie continued her reflections nevertheless.

"He's a nice-appearing young man and I like to hear him talk. I like people who are lively. But I can tell you one thing about him."

"Yes?" Carol said with an effort.

"He's almighty used to having his way about things. You can put that down in your book."

Carol attempted no answer to that, but retreated to the hall without undue haste and to her small room. She undressed quickly and crept into bed, prepared to feign sleep if there were any further interruptions.

It was very near dawn when her weary mind allowed her eyes to close in the sleep of exhaustion. Even so, she rose earlier than usual and attempted to apply a trace of color to her pale cheeks, wondering whether her eyes would betray her. They felt queer, as though there were hollow places behind them. Her haste was an attempt to avoid breakfasting with Aunt Cassie whose own eyes were uncomfortably sharp at times. But, to Carol's relief, Amos was at the table lingering over his hot cakes and coffee.

"You ran out on me last night," was his greeting. "I believe the big boss is cutting in on me. Darned if I won't be glad to see Andy!"

"So will I," Carol agreed, almost wistfully. Andy had been very much in her thoughts these past hours. "I'll tell you what." She tried to smile. "If you'll wait until I drink a cup of coffee, I'll ride as far as the office with you."

"Fine!" Amos beamed. "That will make my whole day!"

"Aren't you going to eat some cakes, Carol?" Mrs. Steel demanded from the doorway.

"I don't care for anything except coffee."

"Humph. That's no way to start the day, especially when you're rushing off early. I'll declare I don't see how you girls live these days on what you eat."

"She looks mighty good to me," Amos said. "Just right . . . not too thick or too thin."

When he let her out in front of Dr. Silverthorne's office entrance Carol suddenly saw Wige pass in his small car. He must be going to work early, too. He passed without recognizing her.

But Carol felt her cheeks flush hotly as she turned away.

Eagle Membership 3,200 For Golden Anniversary

Victoria Aerie No. 12, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will be 50 years old this week-end, but if the Golden Anniversary banquet held at the Club Sirocco last night is any indication, the organization has only "just started."

Several hundred members of the fraternal lodge, accompanied in most cases by their wives, attended the banquet and dance last night.

A "barometer of success" was presented by Ernest Mottishaw, president, who reported membership had been increased by 325 in the past nine months. Total membership is approximately 3,200 in the Greater Victoria area. He gave a thumbnail review and account of the aerie's numerous committees with particular mention of those caring for "youth" guidance, Boy Scouts, sports, social events, the care of returned men, and other activities.

NEW PRESIDENT

Fred Rockett, president-elect of the aerie, with other new officials, will be sworn into office early in June. Other officers for the new year are Jack Rose, vice-president; Ray Walnwright, chaplain; Ralph Moore, conductor; E. Boulmer, inside guard; C. Bowes, outside guard; C. Holt, trustee; D. Essler, trustee; M. P. Paine, treasurer, and George Goodenough, secretary. Trustees remaining in office for the next year are George Pyper, William Cox and J. Wilmshurst.

A highlight of the aerie's 50th anniversary is the beard-growing contest which started January 3, and has more than 400 participants. Many of them attended last night's program. The contest will end this week-end, with judging to take place tonight and tomorrow night at the Bay Street Armoury.

MAYOR PRESENT

Mayor Percy E. George, himself a member of the Eagles' fraternity, extended congratulations and "birthday wishes" to the organization.

"Over the past 50 years," he said, "this aerie has grown to become great, true and strong." He praised the membership for its spirit of friendliness, fellowship and community service.

Among visitors to the banquet were Bert Work, president of the British Columbia provincial Eagle Unit, Nanaimo; and Ben Eakenazi, deputy organizer for Washington State. The affair was also attended by representatives from various Up-Island cities, including Duncan and [illegible].

CONGRATULATIONS

A special message of congratulations was presented by Mrs. Bessie Rose, president of the local Eagles Ladies' Auxiliary.

The Eagles' Golden Anniversary carnival, starting at 7 tonight at the Bay Street Armoury, and continuing tomorrow night, will feature a variety of entertainment. The general public has been invited to attend.

Judges in the beard contest will be Mrs. A. Thompson, city beautician; Frank Turner, president of the local barbers' union; and Dean Caldwell, head of the Barbers' and Beauticians' Union in Seattle. Cash prizes totaling $950 will be awarded contest winners. First prize is $300.

Marine Industries On Display

Marine News

British Columbia's marine industries will be featured between April 18 and 23 at a show in Vancouver's Seaforth Armoury.

It will be the second annual show held under auspices of the Vancouver Central Lions Club and the Navy League of Canada. The armoury will be packed with more than 30 boats, ranging from big gillnetters, cruisers and yachts to inboards and rowboats. There also will be the latest marine engines, a welding display, a graphic and operating exposition of the marine telephone industry, the latest in instruments, general chandlery and sporting goods.

Proceeds of the six-day show will go to charitable activities of the Central Lions Club and the Navy League, including cancer research and youth work.

Officials of the show report more than 50 delegates, representing boards of trades and other interested organizations, will be attending the B.C. Small Harbors Conference, being held at the show on the mornings of April 19 and 20. Dominion and Provincial Government officials will be present to take part in general discussions of small boat moorings, shelter and service, as well as the assembly and dissemination of information on facilities. A number of Vancouver Island delegates are expected to attend the small harbors conference.

DERELICT SCHOONER

A derelict schooner, sighted Tuesday in the Gulf Stream, yesterday was believed to be the Newfoundland-built Keewatin, owned by Donald Parrott of Baltimore. The schooner was sighted drifting in heavy seas off the South Carolina coast. The oil tanker which reported the discovery said the ship was apparently abandoned. There was no sign of life aboard although the tanker sounded repeated blasts of its foghorn.

LONGEST RACE

The revived Olympia-to-Juneau powerboat race will be started July 8, Lyle Iverson, vice-commodore of the Olympia Yacht Club, said yesterday.

The first leg of the capital-to-capital marathon will be the international cruiser race from here to Nanaimo. Iverson reported about 130 boats are expected to enter this part of the race.

"We are expecting only about 25 boats to make the tough trip on to Alaska," he said.

The second leg will be run from Nanaimo to Prince Rupert. After a layover in Prince Rupert, the final leg will be run to Juneau.

Iverson said the capital-to-capital race will be "the longest predicted log race anywhere in the world." Racers must designate their course and speed and estimated time of arrival.

The boat which comes closest to its schedule wins. Clocks on board will be sealed and an observer from the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary will ride each boat.

"The race is actually a test of navigation skill and whether a boat is slow or fast makes no difference," Iverson said.

The race is under the jurisdiction of the International Powerboat Association. The local yacht club is the host club for the race.

FIND CRAFT

An R.C.A.F. aircraft yesterday located one of two small fishing craft reported missing after gale-force winds lashed East Coast areas during the night.

The fishing smack Mildred B. II, carrying Percy Thurber and his son, Early, was spotted by the aircraft in tow of another boat, apparently in no danger. Search continued for the 38-foot Clifford Amiro, missing out of Yarmouth, on the southwestern shore, with Gordon Banks aboard.

JAPANESE TO FISH

Ten Japanese-Canadians have been granted fishing licences since the March 31 lifting of the ban on British Columbia coast licences.

Officials of the Fisheries Department office in Vancouver said yesterday nine of the licences were issued in Vancouver, and the tenth in New Westminster.

The department reports there is no indication of a mass rush by the Japanese to re-enter the fishing industry.

Some of the Japanese, all of whom must prove they are British subjects, obtained more than one licence. Separate permits are required for each specific fishery.

SEND DIVERS

A diving party of one officer and two men of the Royal Canadian Navy were scheduled to reach Calgary late yesterday. Going in answer to a distress call, the divers will assist in a search for the body of a small boy drowned there recently.

The three—Commissioned Bo'sn Chaney, P.O. James Wilson and P.O. J. Connolly of the Pacific Command staff—left Esquimalt Wednesday afternoon.

With them are two diving suits, dividg'air pump apparatus and other equipment.

Reports from Calgary claim all attempts to recover the boy's body have failed to date, due primarily to lack of proper equipment.

It was hoped to recover the body before Spring floods which would probably bury the body permanently.

Solicitor Gives Testimony As Walls' Trial Opens

Trial of J. Percival Walls, former barrister, began yesterday before Magistrate H. C. Hall in Saanich council chambers with H. A. Beckwith, a life-long acquaintance of Walls, as key Crown witness.

Walls is charged with intending to defraud a widow, Isabella E. Corble, 1684 Knight Avenue, of $3,131, while acting on her behalf in closing the estate of her husband.

Mr. Beckwith, a solicitor, said he questioned Mr. Walls about the estate left by the late Ernest E. Corble, after the widow visited Beckwith's office in May, 1947.

He said Mr. Walls "positively refused" to tell him what he had done with two insurance cheques totaling $3,131, but promised to get the money shortly after the May 24 holiday.

ENDORSED CHEQUES

But, Mr. Beckwith went on, he kept putting it off and later said he had endorsed the cheques over to Clyde Gillies, who was identified on a bank statement on exhibit as then manager of Sovereign Industries Ltd.

Mr. Beckwith said he was alarmed, and "kept up pressure" on Walls to make good the money. By this time he added, he had taken over the handling of the estate from Mr. Walls.

He said Walls later introduced him to Gillies who said the cash would be available within a month.

"That didn't materialize," Mr. Beckwith said.

He added that two sums of $135 and $150 had been paid off against the $3,000.

OBTAINED RECEIPTS

He told of obtaining receipts Walls had given Mrs. Corble after she had endorsed the insurance cheques over to him.

They were both marked: "Held in trust pending winding up the estate."

Mr. Beckwith then read from a letter he wrote to Mr. Walls telling him he had "quite improperly parted with this money and turned it over to a third party in breach of your duty."

He also described the dealing as "a very stupid attempt to pretend the money was lent to you."

He then told of an undefended judgment for indebtedness he took against Mr. Walls on behalf of Mrs. Corble in which Mr. Walls was ordered to pay $2,846 to the widow.

"As far as I know none of that money has been restored," he added.

C. L. Harrison, Crown prosecutor, then read from an examination of Walls by Mr. Beckwith in an indebtedness proceeding in which Walls declared that by turning the money over to Mr. Gillies "I thought I would get a good rate of interest for Mrs. Corble."

Under cross-examination by James J. Proudfoot, counsel with H. K. Bate for Walls, Mr. Beckwith was asked if he knew the case had been brought up in the Legislature.

"Do you know how it got there?" Mr. Proudfoot asked.

"Not from me," Mr. Beckwith said.

The case is continuing.

May Protect Aldermen From Tickets

Why not save committee members the hazard of getting a ticket for over-parking while they are attending meetings at the City Hall?

This question was raised yesterday by A. C. Lindsay, chairman of the zoning board of appeal.

He thought it would be a good idea if the city issued special tags to committee members whose presence is regularly required at City Hall. Then they could park their cars near the building, fasten a tag on their windshields to notify policemen that overtime on the parking meter had resulted from official city business.

In order to ensure that advantage was not being taken of the privilege, committee members could pick up their "over-parking tags" from the City Clerk's office, advised Mr. Lindsay. The tags would only be issued to committee members required on official business and could be stamped with appropriate dates.

Club Launches New Project For Oak Bay

Oak Bay Kiwanis Club members are hard at work on the new $5,000 refreshment building at Willows Park.

Work on the project was started last Saturday when a working party from the club donned overalls, rolled up sleeves, and commenced to tear down the old buildings on the site.

Oak Bay Council granted $1,500 towards the hut, and the Oak Bay club has pledged itself to donate a minimum of $300, plus the labor of erecting the building.

When completed it will consist of a tearoom, hot dog stand, dressing rooms and a place to store equipment.

Excavation work has been completed and the black loam taken from the site turned over to Oak Bay municipality.

Reeve Robert A. Wootton at a recent meeting of the Oak Bay Council, said: "The council warmly appreciates the work in the municipality of this club."

Four in Nomination Race Speak to Young P.C.'s

Four Progressive Conservatives who are contending for the party nomination to contest the Victoria Federal riding in the forthcoming general Federal election, were given a final chance last night to prep for the convention fray tonight.

All four were present at a Young Progressive Conservative meeting in Prince Robert House to bid for support from the youthful P.C.'s.

Contenders for the candidacy to be decided at today's Progressive Conservative nominating convention were Mrs. R. D. Harvey, Ald. Waldo Skillings, Whitworth Stanbury and Gordon A. Cameron.

All the candidates displayed a nice talent for getting in and out of hot water as the young P.C.'s fired questions on background and policy, with few punches pulled.

Hottest topic of discussion was the question of new immigration into Canada. Nearly all the candidates drew the ire of several militant young P.C.'s when they went on record as favoring Anglo-Saxon immigrants over those from Central Europe.

A lively set-to also came up over the matter of communism, on which subject the youthful politicos apparently had much more definite ideas than the candidate hopefuls. An East Indian youth asked prospective candidate Waldo Skillings how he explained the fact that "intelligent, well-educated people" sometimes "turned to communism while living in this land of 'equal opportunity.'"

Mr. Skillings had help from other contestants on this one, without who complained that the answers apparently signified that teachers shouldn't complain about getting less money than shipyard workers.

After the four contenders for the candidancy left, the meeting settled down to discuss their various qualifications.

Name of the contestant of their choice was not disclosed.
